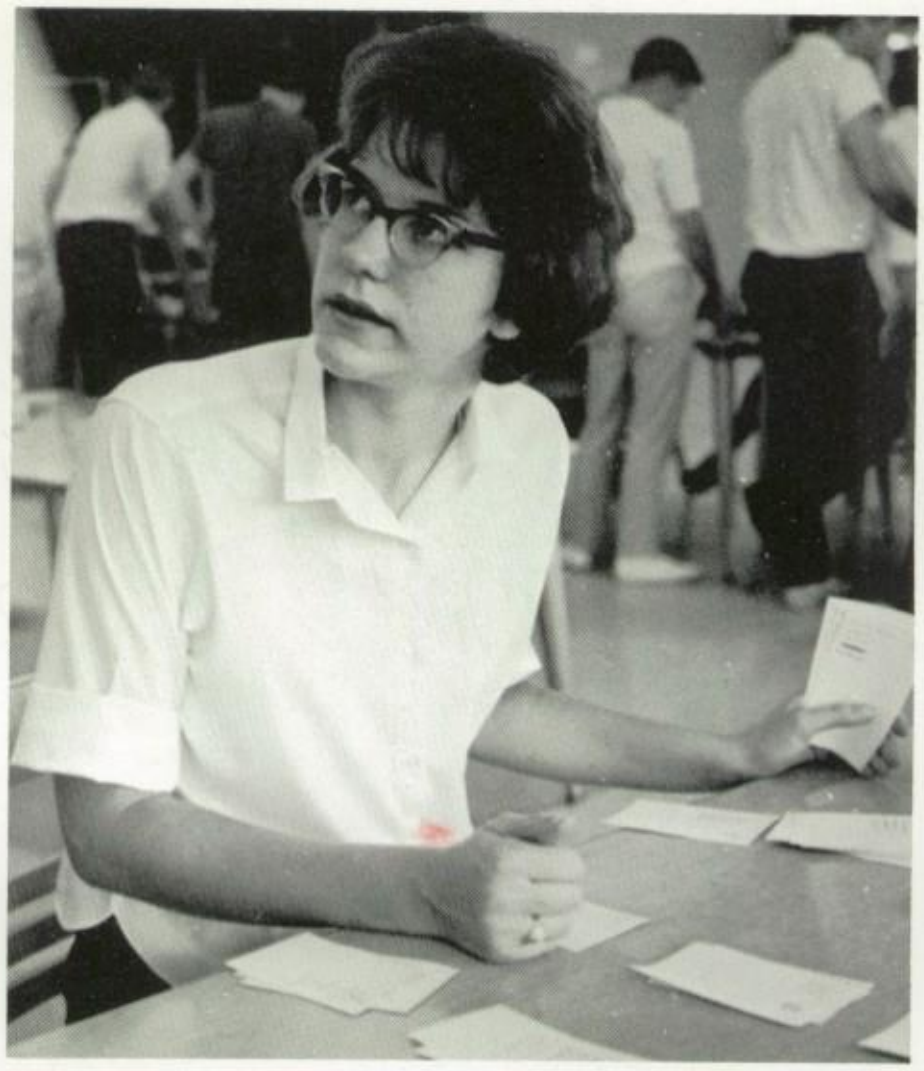
Working for Money, Self-Satisfaction or Image

As one looks back, he sees only the good. As we look back on our high school days, we will remember working, because working for accomplishment and with knowledge is good.

We see ourselves drilling vocabulary words and welding fenders, stitching dresses and threading films, speaking on persuasive topics and relating historical dates. We remember interpreting profound poetry and calculating percentage of error, hammering fifty words per minute and planing wood surfaces, baking pies and firing pottery. Measuring cubic centimeters of phenolphthalein and blending alto with soprano, testing minds in the classrooms and exercising muscles in the gym, occupied working hours in school.

For many students, working did not stop at the end of the school day. We dispersed throughout the community and were employed in part-time jobs. We see ourselves carrying groceries at supermarkets or food at drive-ins, and delivering papers and pizzas. Changing a tire in a gas station or a child while baby-sitting, and checking in books at the library or checking over inventory at a store, kept money coming in.

To keep grades satisfactory, many after school hours were spent in study. We see ourselves doing research at the library, cramming in the wee hours and reading over assignments.



"I TELL YOU that book is on your charge card. Get that book!" declared Sharon Bruette as she checked in textbooks on the last hectic day of the school year.

STARTING FROM THE ground up, potential sculptors Mary Jo Stannard, Sandy Schneider and Pat Howard chipped clay for later use in art class.

MR. MALANEY WAS caught working by a staff photographer of the Daily Northwestern. The Notebook's adviser set up the tripod-mounted camera for Tom Wildman before leaving to capture audience reactions in candid pictures.

IN GARAGES AND on lawns, floats and signs for Homecoming were constructed. Joy Konrad and Bruce Erickson approach sign painting in typical teenage fashion: one works while the other rests.

Don,
Good luck always. Sure was fun going to those parties. They were a blast. It was nice knowing you. Hope I see you in the future. So long grad.

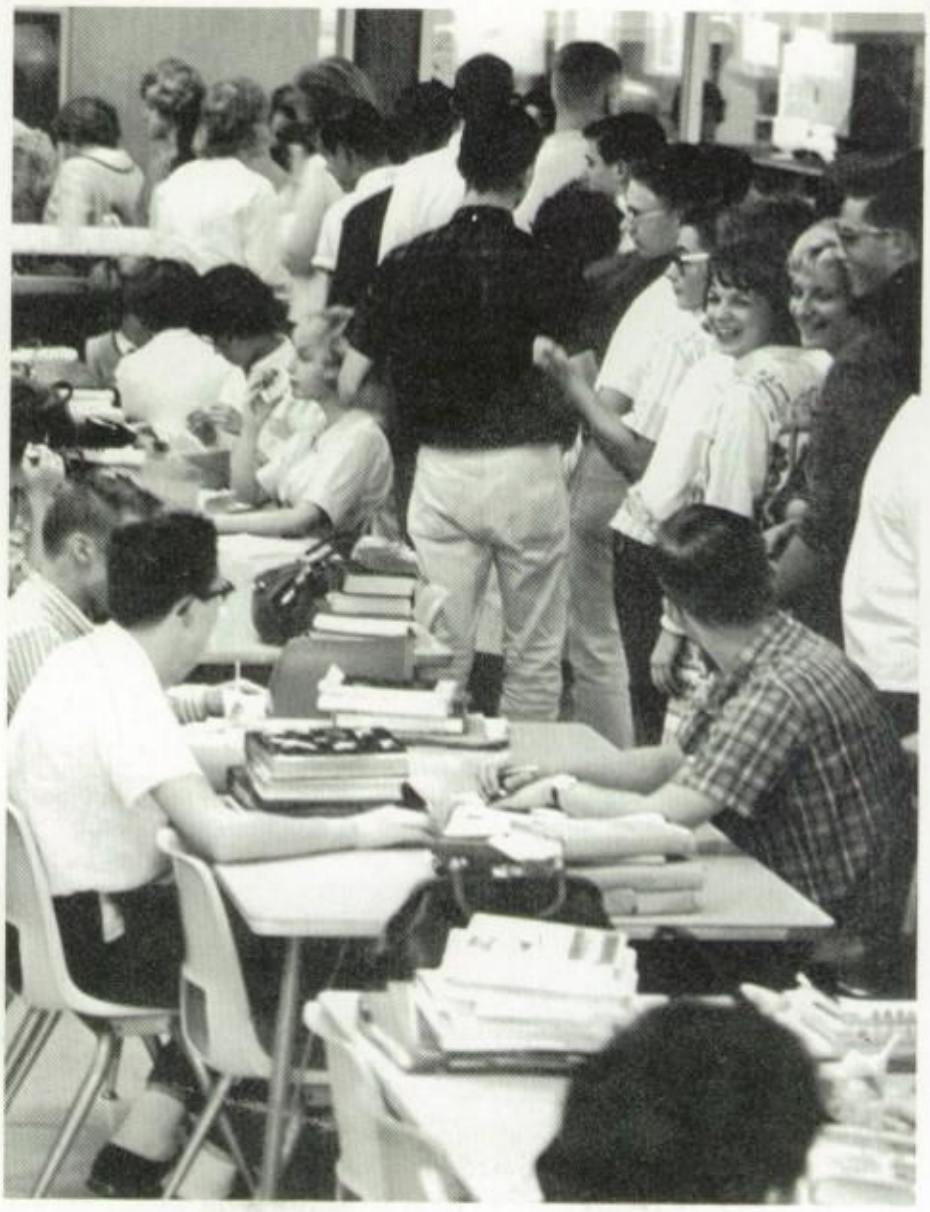
In the Midst of Enjoying a School-Centered Life

As one looks back, he sees only the good. As we look back on our high school days, we will remember the entertaining, relaxing hours spent in play.

We see ourselves gossiping about fellow students and teachers, complaining of cafeteria and bus service and telephoning for assignment information and assistance. We remember sneaking off to Mars, penny flipping, dividing birthday cakes at lunch, sweater knitting, chewing bubble gum and note passing. The fun of late hours spent in pasting-up the Index, rehearsing a play and preparing the Notebook will easily be recalled.

After a working week at school, we see ourselves relaxing over the week ends. These two days were filled with football and basketball games, potlucks, library visiting, dates, movies, grub fests, reading, picnics, Rec Dances and television. We remember French fries, pizzas, onion rings and triple-thick shakes. According to season, we went on skiing trips, hunting expeditions and Christmas shopping tours. Perhaps more than anything else, week ends provided an opportunity to sleep away hours lost during the busy preceding week.



WAITING IN LINE for food, reviewing the morning's activities and borrowing lunch money made the twenty-six minute lunch period fly by.

WHILE ENROLLED IN the summer Behind the Wheel course, these students displayed a sober, studied attitude toward the mechanics of driving. But, once the possessors of drivers' licenses, students use the car to go to pot-lucks, dances and school.

Hi Son, Well here we are through with Physics (EXLAX) at last, and I'm sure glad we made it. Max's homemade tests sure were devestating! Standardized ones were too!

PROFESSOR HAROLD HILL, the "Music Man," adroitly molded school board members, James Luedtke, Richard Repenshek, Steven Romberg and Dennis Karl, into a barbershop quartet so as to evade their questioning.

FREQUENTLY, MUSIC IS the sound of play and fun. The Concert Band, shown below marshalling its ranks in the middle of Otter Street, provided this appropriate backdrop for the 1963 Homecoming Parade. I hope we didn't get sterilized by his electrons! I doubt it. Will see you, PS to be Good! Take'er easy, Best to you, Steve Romberg

CHEERLEADERS JUMPED AND BOUNCED. Students clapped and stomped. The Pep Band tooted the ever popular rhythmic tunes. And supposedly the morale of teams was raised. But, in actuality everyone was happy because Pep Rallies shortened the school day.

Don;

You were a great asset to psychology class. Too bad we had Miss Link! You are a great guy with a great mind. Stay that way!!!

Good Luck

ACADEMICS

Whether it is a new method of detention avoidance, a fresh interpretation of a sonnet or a revolutionary theory of evolution, the students teach as they are taught. But this accumulating knowledge could not repay the debt of those learning to those teaching. It was the teacher from whom the students received inspired guidance, dedication of purpose and intellectual curiosity.

A teacher's job went beyond the classroom. Eventually everyone of the 100 faculty members walked hall duty and supervised the detention room. Although the IBM machine arranged programs, the faculty members still decided grades and evaluated student behavior. The duties of the teachers were further expanded by organizing homerooms, advising clubs and assisting in activities.

We seem too busy feeling that without students there would be no school to realize that without teachers there could be no students.

Principal Oshkosh Senior High School

Tedious Work and Long Hours Are Necessity for Dr. Traeger

The school's chief decision-maker was Dr. Carl Traeger. To parents, civic organizations and professional associations, he was Oshkosh High School. His job was enabling the school to function according to the Board of Education directives. A daily routine was set up to take care of planned activities. This schedule was regularly interrupted by emergencies which required immediate attention.

The mail brought recommendation requests, invitations and reference material—all of which demanded his immediate personal consideration. As principal, Dr. Traeger assisted new enrolling students and discussed problems with students leaving school. Having sent notes to members of the faculty, Dr. Traeger was continuously receiving questions, committee reports and answers from teachers.

Although interrupted by momentary crises, Dr. Traeger had to plan ahead for upcoming events. Pep rallies, prom, assemblies and Homecoming activities were but a few events scheduled long before they occurred. With graduation in mind, he notified students and parents of possible failures to encourage better work. With new sophomores in mind, Dr. Traeger met with junior high school principals, outlined future programs and estimated expansion possibilities.

In its entirety, Dr. Traeger's job was one of supervision. He kept things running by knowing what had to be done, by delegating someone to do it and by insuring that it was done.

Personal Contact With Students Required of Vice Principals

In the hands of our Vice Principals, Mr. Fratt and Mr. Weess, rested the welfare and reputation of Oshkosh High School. Their major duties were ones of reference and discipline.

It was Mr. Fratt and Mr. Weess to whom parents turned for information on their son or daughter's behavior, grades and attitude. Because they supervised development testing and assembled accumulative records, it was our Vice Principals from whom prospective employers sought insight into students' capabilities.

Oshkosh High was like many other schools in that it had disciplinary problems. Smoking, kicking in windows, skipping, presetting lockers and defying teachers were some of the disturbances dealt with daily by Mr. Fratt and Mr. Weess. As a result of these actions, the students were sent to the detention hall of which the Vice Principals had charge.

Adding to their already vast contact with students, Mr. Fratt and Mr. Weess chaperoned dances, attended extra-curricular affairs and oversaw athletic events.

Secretaries Struggle with Details and Paper Work

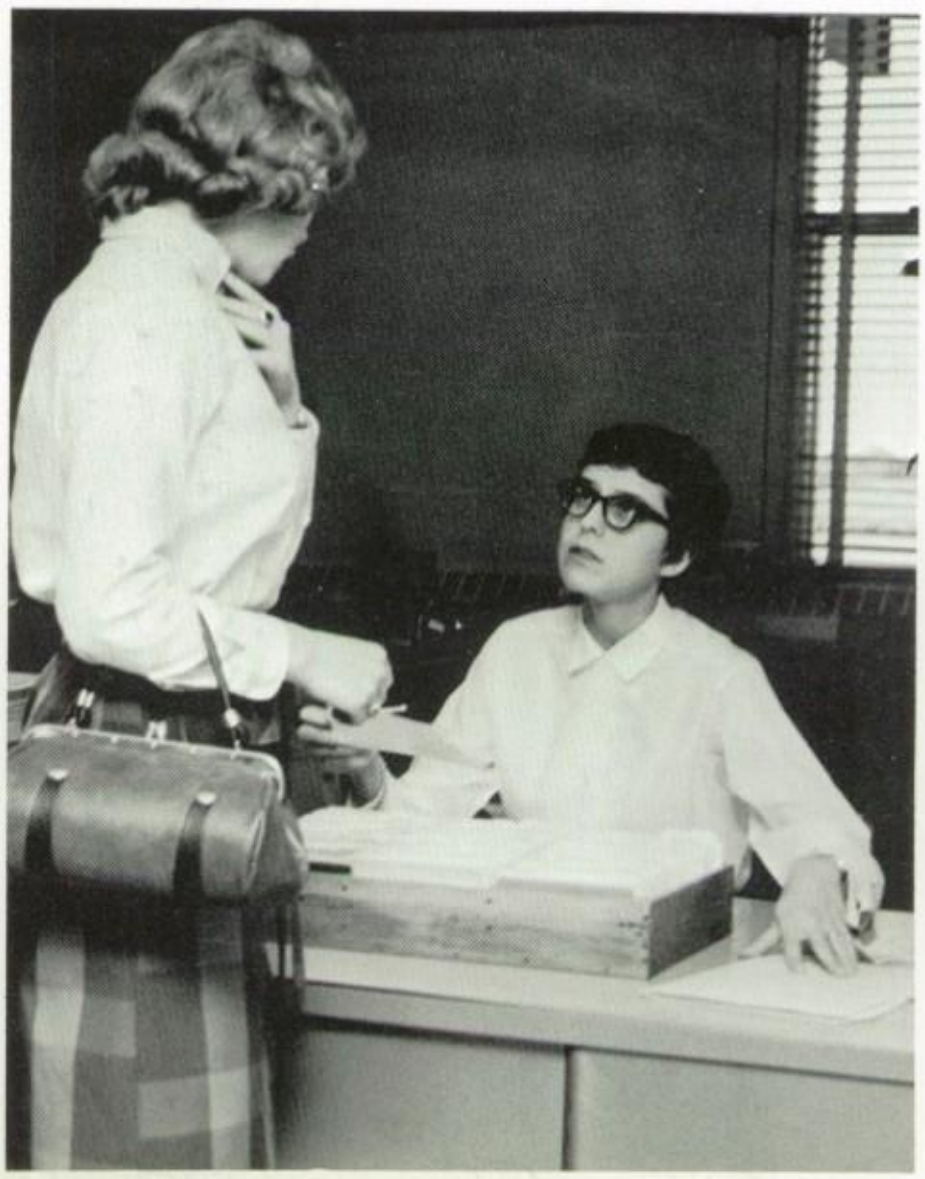
TO DR. TRAEGER'S SECRETARY, Mrs. Travis, who follows every student through three years of recorded school life, these diplomas were proof of accomplishment. Here she arranges them for presentation at graduation.

Behind their work piled desks sat the five secretaries of OHS. With helpful smiles, rapid typing fingers and pleasant telephone voices, these diligent office workers ironed out emergencies and kept school operations continuing smoothly.

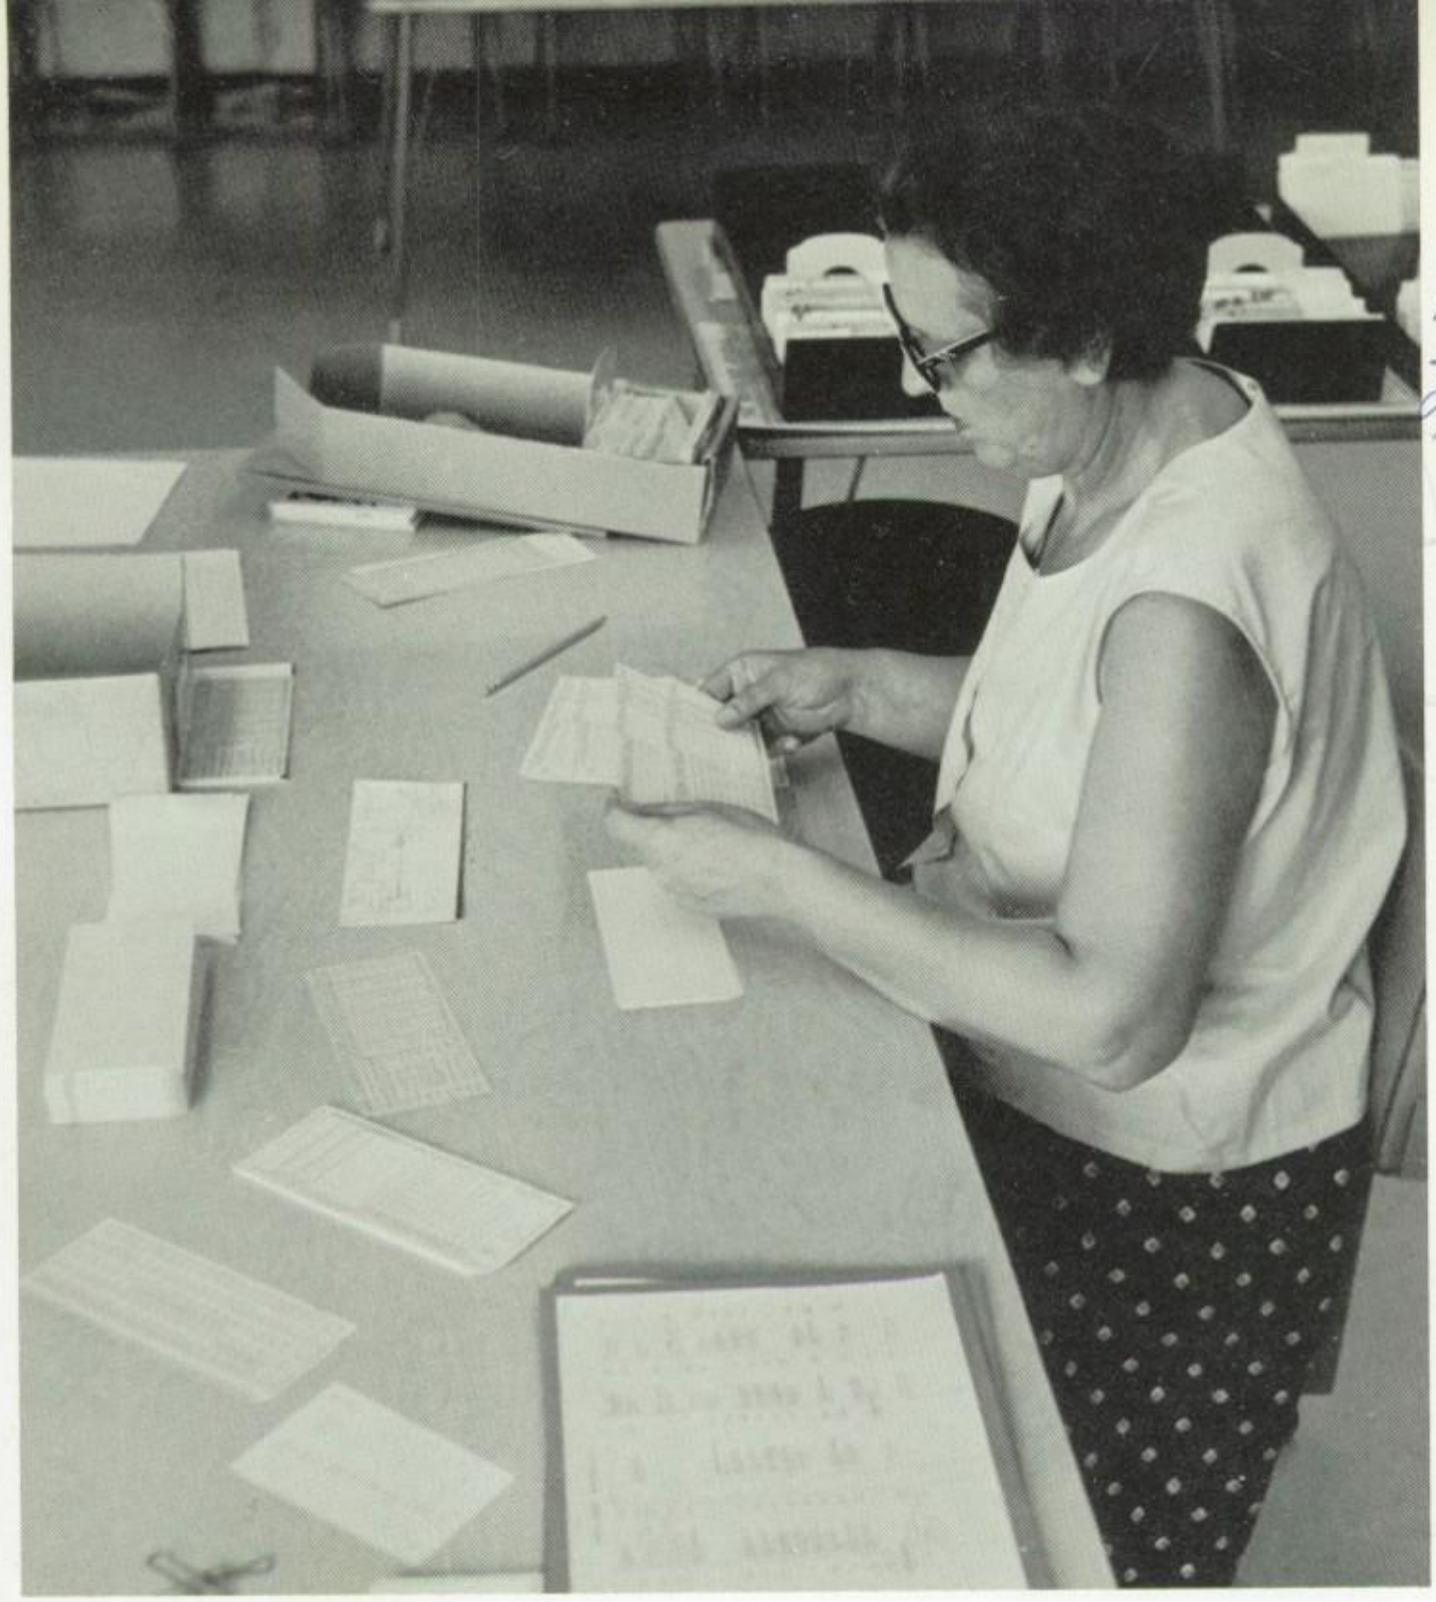
Located in the heart of the school, the administration area, the office staff influenced every wing of the school. A call came into the office; someone had a cold and would be absent. The name was recorded and checked against absentee lists sent to the office by teachers. Meanwhile one secretary was sorting mail and stamping outgoing correspondence, and another was gathering, typing and mimeographing the daily announcements. Calls from ill teachers, worried parents and prospective student employers flooded in and were communicated to the proper person. Scheduling counselor interviews and receiving visiting college representatives were among the jobs of one staff member.

Keeping track of students was the office staff's biggest full-time job, as complete files on every student at OHS were compiled by the secretaries. Grades, teacher comments, photographs and educational backgrounds were recorded in these files.

STUDENTS IN DISTRESS, students with announcements for the daily bulletin and students wishing to speak with Dr. Traeger—they all turned first to Mrs. Osborn.



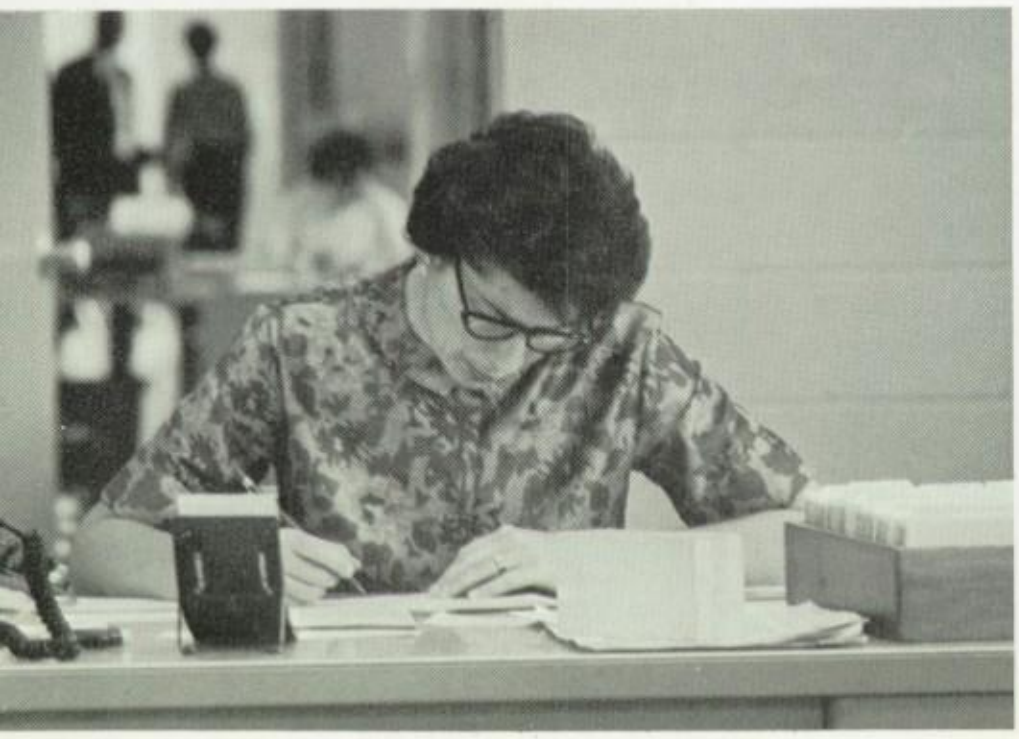
TO PARENTS of sick or skipping students who telephone in absence excuses, the voice of OHS was Mrs. Albinussen of the Attendance Office.



Don --
Been nice knowing you. Hope to see you next year sometime. You better tell me how your college life is.
John Terrell

AFTER SORTING and indexing stacks of the new program cards, Miss Kleveno was dismayed as letters and numbers often scrambled themselves before her eyes.

TYPICALLY, MRS. ISAACSON was bent intently over her desk. As secretary to the Guidance and Counseling staff, most of her time was absorbed in scheduling student-counselor interviews.

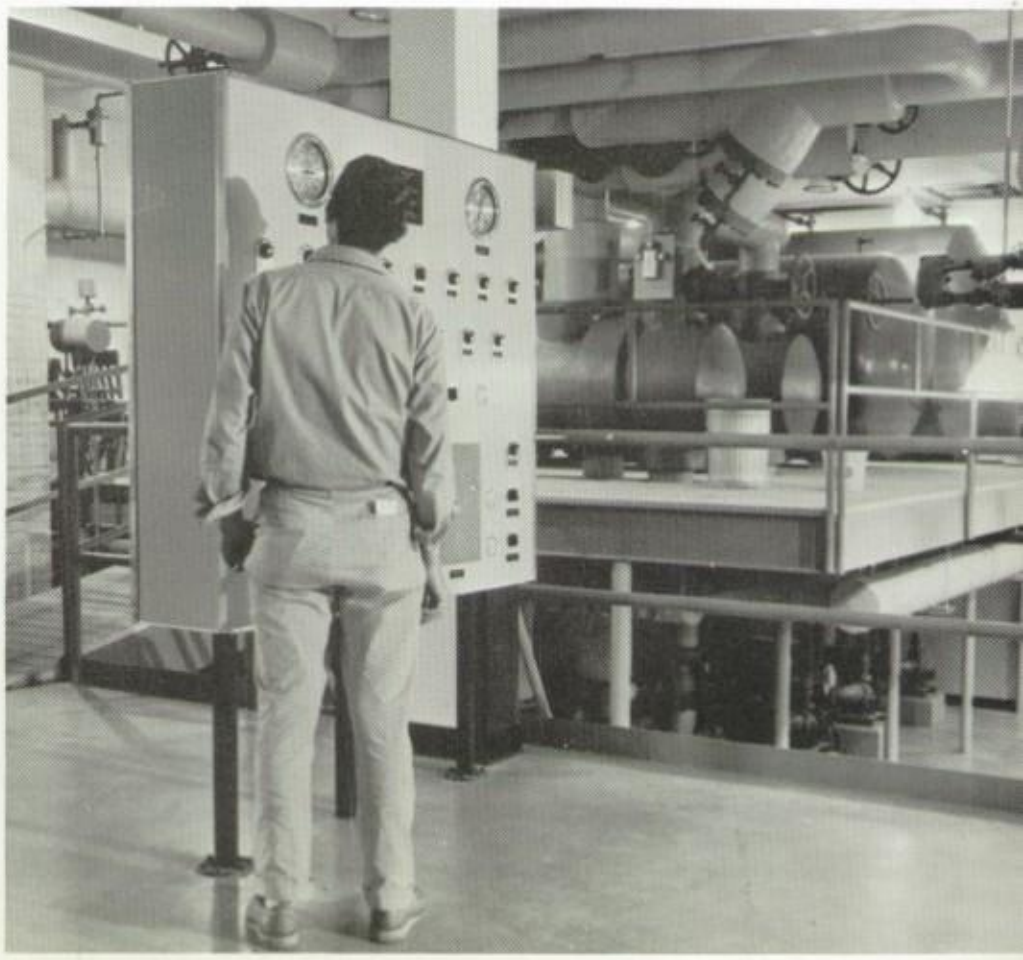


SCHOOL NURSE MRS. RUDOLPH was responsible for the general health of the student body and assisted in sophomore physicals.

THE SCHOOL'S CUSTODIAL STAFF, bottom row: C. Lucht, D. Kieckhafer, A. Koch, A. Rottman, R. Jensen. ROW TWO: F. Postl, R. Mainwaring, R. Werner. ROW THREE: J. Retzloff, C. Rehbein, K. Elmer, G. Schneider, H. Wollangk, P. Miller.

EITHER FROM Clarence Rehbein's ground level view or from John Epprecht's view up on the scaffolding, cleaning and changing fluorescent light tubes is a once a year summertime housekeeping chore which has to be performed in each classroom.

A QUICK GLANCE at the master gauge control panel assured Roger Zeller that the several miles of underground heating pipes were functioning properly.

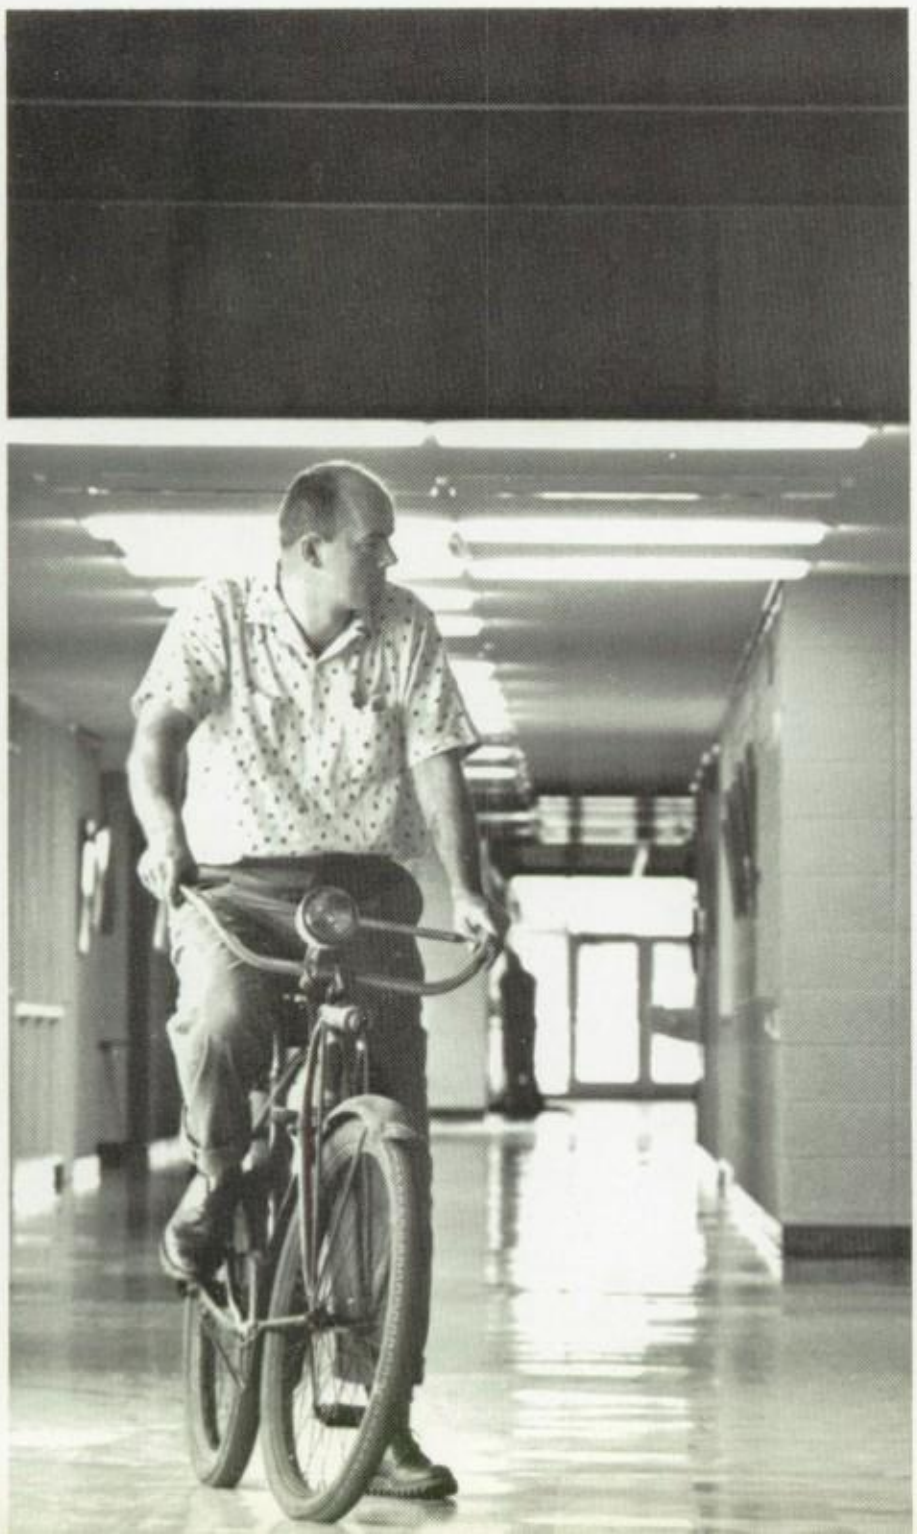


Schoolkeeping Requires Year Around Attention

To put up, take down, clean out, sweep around and shovel through were the tasks of eleven custodians and two matrons. Invariably the first ones at school in the morning, they ride guard duty all night. These jacks-of-all-trades washed lipstick-smeared mirrors, cleaned dusty erasers, replaced smashed windows, unlocked stubborn lockers and scraped gum from floors and desks. Routinely, they set rooms in order, kept bubblers in operation and emptied wastepaper baskets. Without students to hinder their progress, the custodians polished floors, refinished desks and tended boilers.

After school the custodians used work-saving carts, complete with mops, chamois, chalk, pliers, rags, a dust pan and a sandwich.

ON WEEKENDS OR AFTER SCHOOL, whenever the building is emptied of students and teachers, George Schneider is able to give his tired feet a little rest. At these times the custodians are able to patrol the long corridors by riding a bicycle.



FROM SHOWER ROOM FLOORS to the washing machines to sorting table and then back to the locker rooms, towels were shuttled daily. Mrs. Wollangk managed the sudsy task in the laundry room.

NOT ONLY DOES Mr. Jensen "ride herd" on the custodial crew by virtue of the fact that he is head custodian, but given the opportunity he even rides to cut the lawn.

SURROUNDED BY TRAYS, steam tables, hot buns and empty plates, cafeteria assembly line workers efficiently prepared hot lunches piece by piece on conveyor belts for three shifts of hungry students.

Cafeteria Supplies Hot Lunches To Famished Throng of Students

No matter what activity, a pep skit, assembly or health testing, took place in the morning, one period in the day could never be altered—fourth hour. The time allotted to eat lunch was neatly staggered over one and a half hours.

Enduring the daily rush of hot-lunch customers and milk purchasers was the kitchen staff. These ten full-time employees and twenty-three student helpers peeled onions, sliced meat, grated cheese, filled ketchup bottles, buttered rolls, frosted cakes and diced vegetables. Following these preparatory measures, the staff loaded trays from warming dishes, took milk money and offered straws and salt packets. Meanwhile, other workers were sorting, scraping and sterilizing plates and silverware. Two of the crew then wiped off the tables, a custodian moved the pleated doors back into place, and the cafeteria became four study halls once more.

School Board Oversees Complex School System

MR. PERRY A. TIPLER
Superintendent Oshkosh Area Public Schools

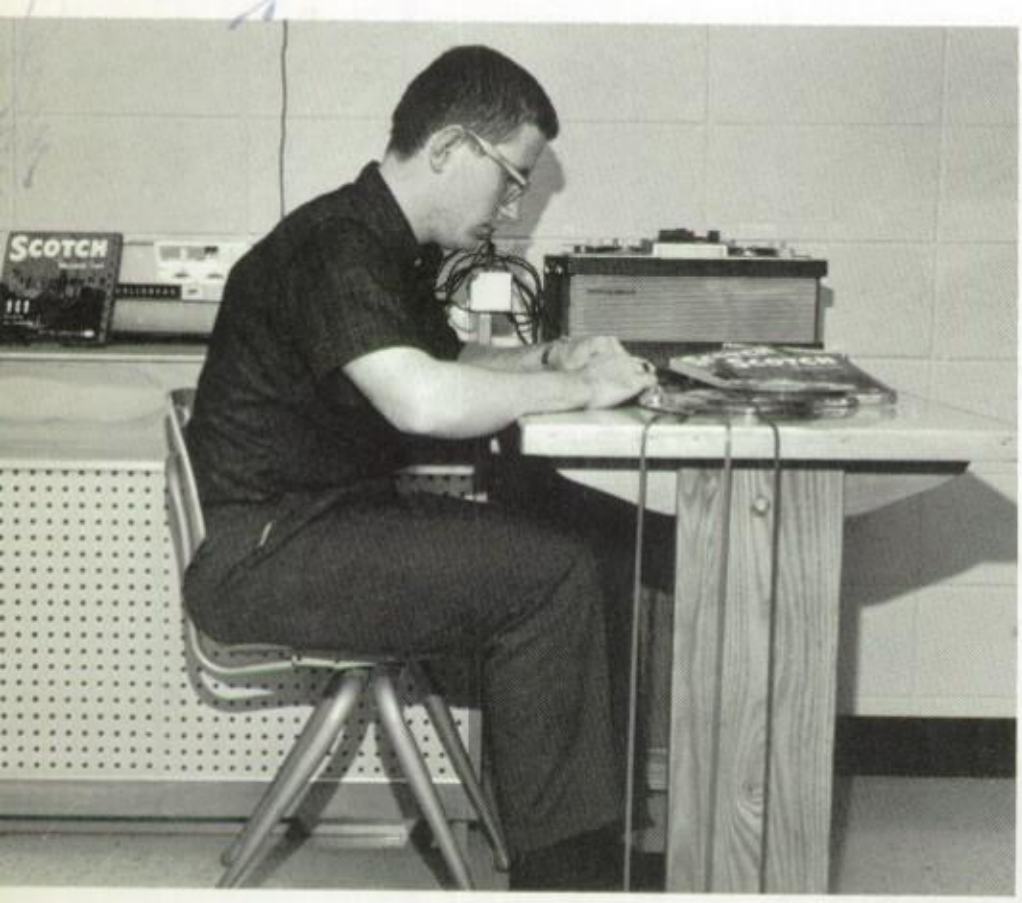
In the complexities of high school, students neglect to realize that in the Board of Education's scope, we are only a part. The six men and one woman comprising the Board are responsible for all schools in the Oshkosh Area Public School District.

Estimating a yearly budget, allotting funds to maintain school affairs and reviewing the curriculum backgrounds of each high school student occupy the time and energy of board members. Business leaders, professional men and homemakers in private life, these people give their energies for the betterment of education in our community.

MR. EUGENE BALTS, Assistant Superintendent in Charge of Instruction; MR. WILLIAM HARVEY, Business Manager and Secretary to the Board of Education.

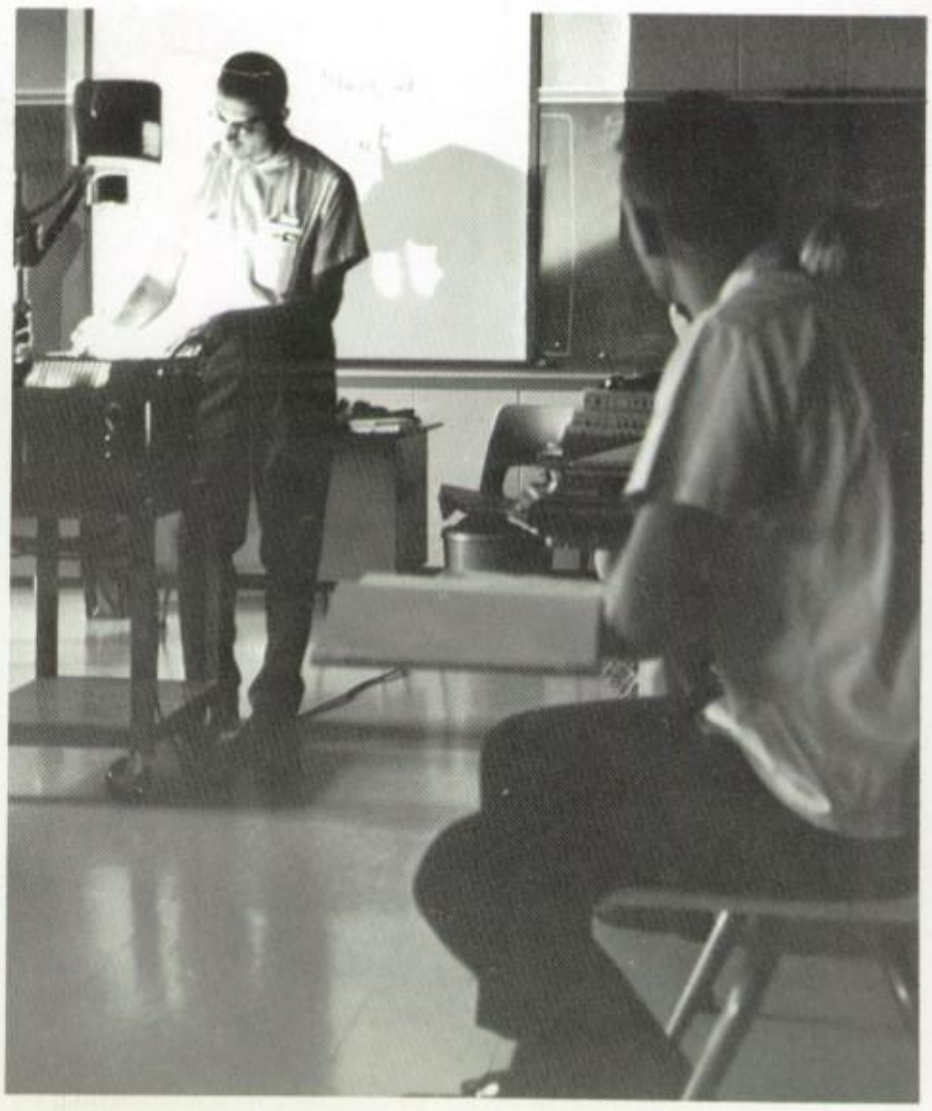
Words Are Indispensable Key To All Languages

GUIDED BY MISS FENZEL, combination third and fourth year Latin class students, Carol Albinussen, Jane Borchers and Bruce Weber, clarified the meaning of a passage from The Aeneid by sharing their interpretations in small groups.



ALTHOUGH THE EAST WING is the primary facility for the use of audio visual materials, as a student assistant in the AV Room, Dave Padgham has to splice and repair tapes and films for use throughout the entire building.

INSTEAD OF TIME-CONSUMING individual assistance, Mr. Biendarra employed an opaque projector to illustrate copy editing symbols to his journalism class.



BY FLIPPING INDIVIDUAL SWITCHES on the master control, Mr. Anderson could always foil French students who hoped to hide their gossip, incorrect pronunciation and answer exchanges behind language laboratory desks.

Arms of the cold war, intermediary of debate, tools of persuasion—these are words. Conversation of and about words in four languages was found in East School.

Sophomores memorized the words of Julius Caesar, while juniors became familiar with career words. Depth behind the word "literature" was explored by senior English students. Rhetorics, word-sensitivity and editorials came from English electives vocabularies.

Story translation, accurate pronunciation and vocabulary building were the essence of French, Latin and Spanish classes, where tapes, poetry and films sparked interest in foreign words.

What are you going to do now that your out in the "big bad world".

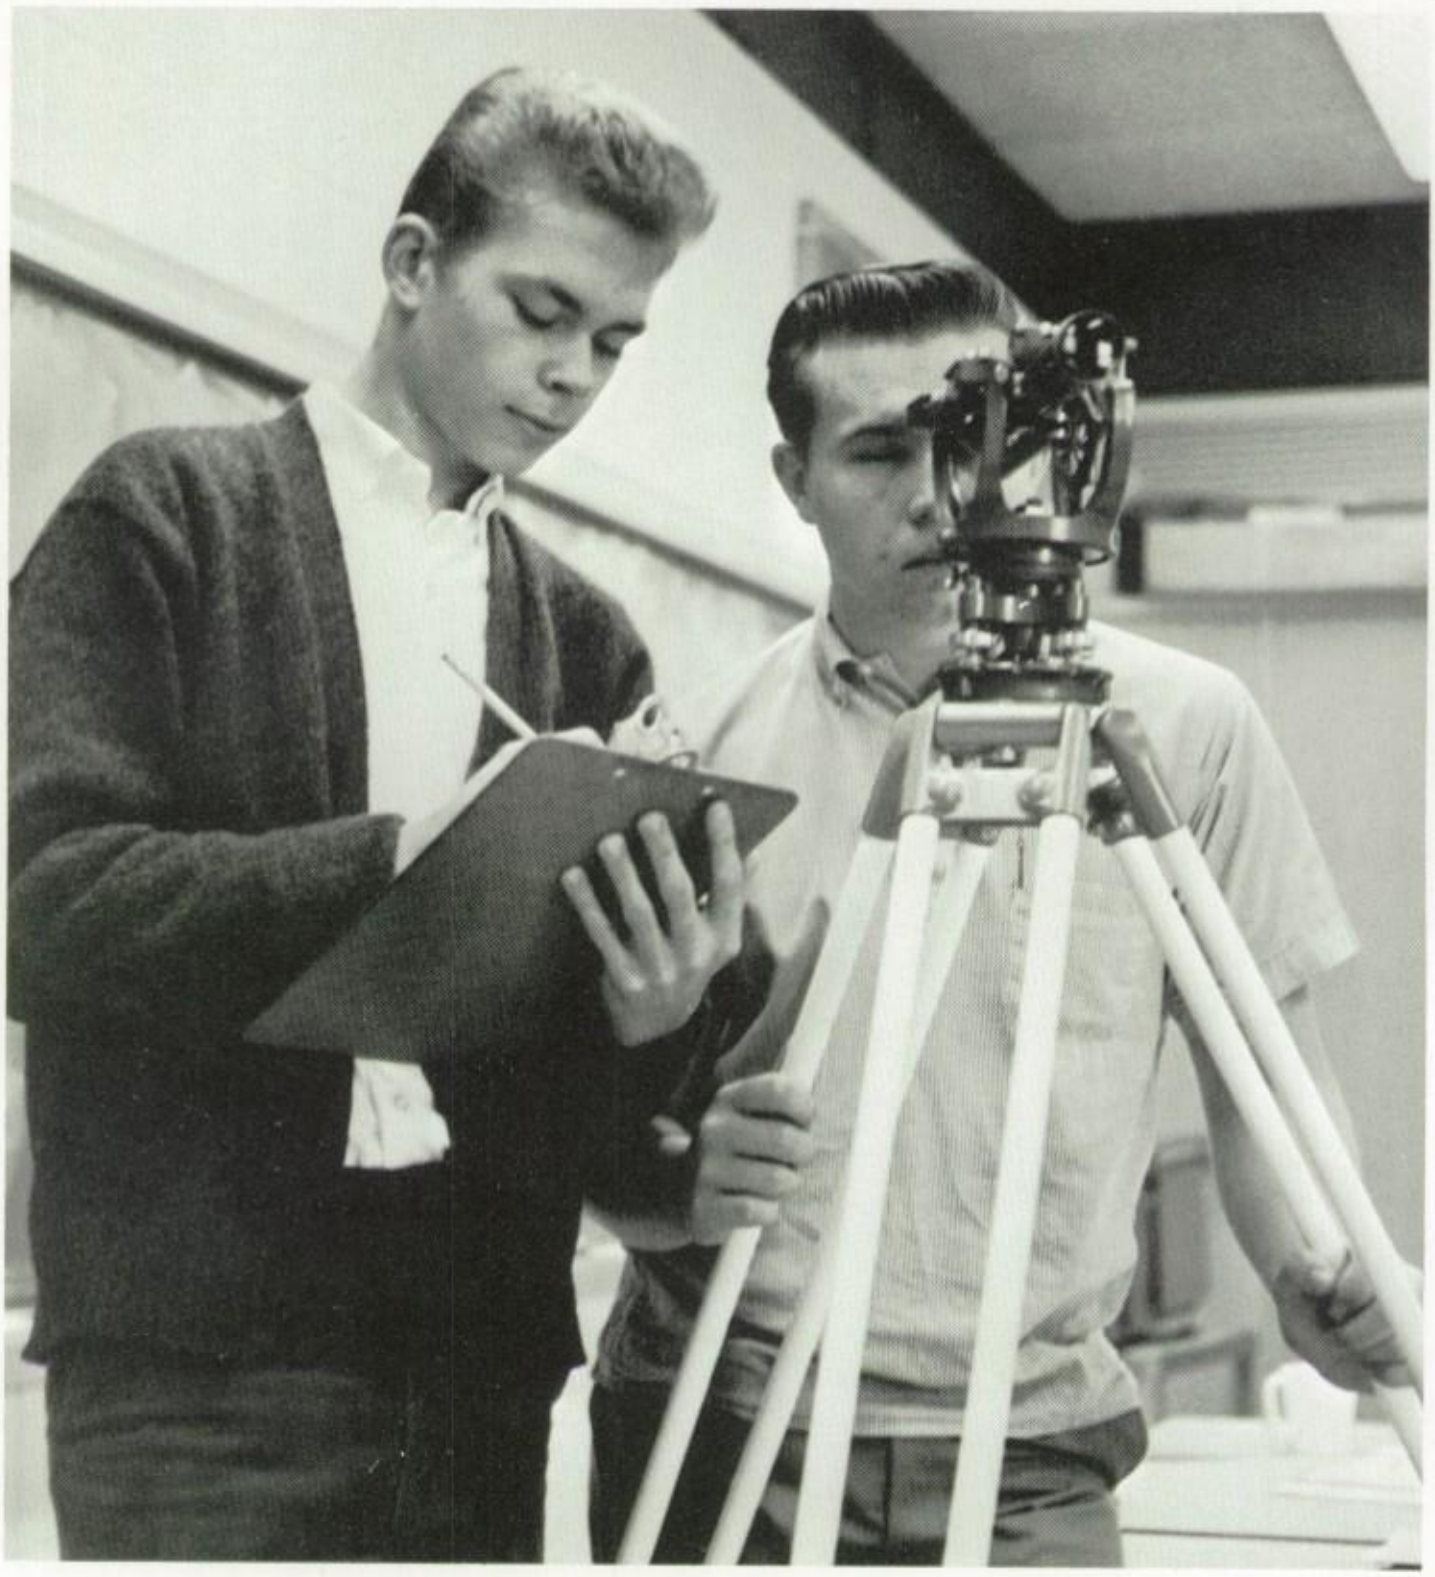
HAROLD SONNLEITNER AND DUWAYNE SCHUMACHER ran a final check on the application and use of the transit in the Math Laboratory before taking the instrument outdoors to prove that the football field is a rectangle.



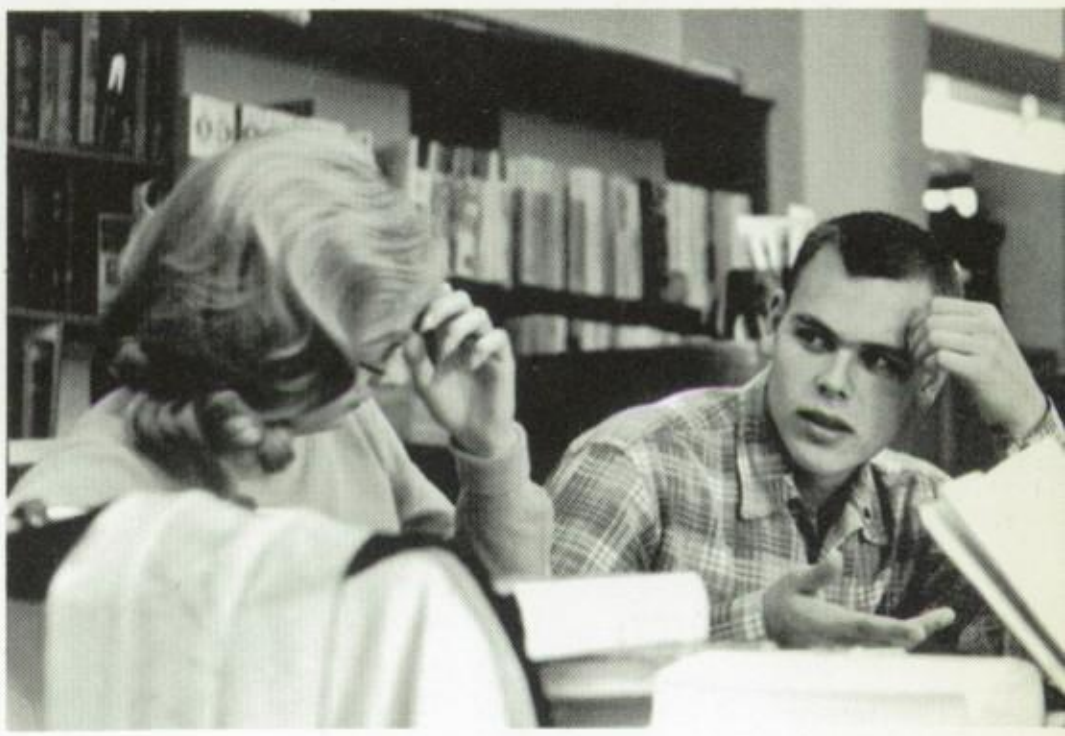
As the world looks to the west for social understanding and scientific developments, so OHS looked to West School for knowledge of mathematics and insight into social studies.

Ever-changing bulletin boards stressed the creativity and cleverness of history students. Current magazines, detailed maps, "three by three's" and mimeographed outlines were found in social studies classrooms. The "ifs" accumulated as history classes pondered the decisions of Caesar, Lee and Kennedy.

Projects, problems and puzzles provided by the math laboratory and teachers perplexed even the best mathematical student-wizards.

WHILE GLORIA TROXELL observed the procedure, Robert J. Henkel demonstrated to Mr. Spees' Geography class how to measure distance in miles between two given points on a globe using a flexible plastic Nystrom mileage scale.

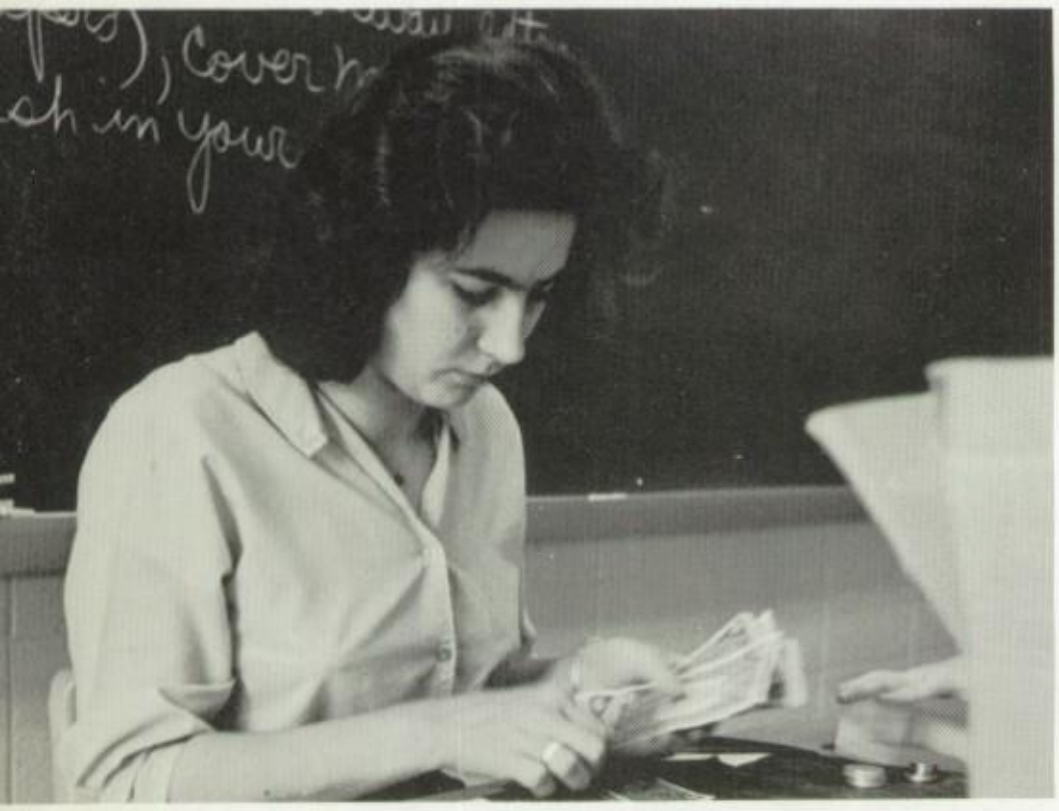
THE PUBLIC LIBRARY Reference Reading Room was jammed with American Problems and American History students who flocked there to compile notes for research papers. Laurel Pope and Rich Fuhs debated the merits of one reference book.



PERHAPS A 500 WORD essay could fully explain the use and presence of pumpkins in a Junior English class. Anyway, on Halloween Day Mike Dougherty, Dave Habel and Ray Laabs presented Mrs. Wille with these mementoes of the day.

Widest Selection of Courses Is Offered By Central Section

DOROTHY BAIER'S MONEY counting was a typical scene of the Commercial Wing. Nearly all organizational money eventually found its way into one of the commercial rooms where a student helper and faculty adviser checked the sums before banking.



OBLIVIOUS TO NOISES of the outside world, Judy Quimby, Joanne Smet and Holly Hinz type pre-recorded exercises for a Clerical Practice class.

HAVING PRACTICED THE good and proper manners expected of guests, Miss Habstritt's Home Ec Survey class was told the mock wedding ceremonies were over. With eagerness and delight the girls clustered around the table to consume the class-made goodies.

ARRANGING DISPLAY WINDOWS was one of the activities of the retailing class. Here Mr. Pennewell and Janet Jorgenson added the finishing touches to a manikin to be used in a display advertising "The Music Man."

Each day thousands of keys snapped as precise typewriters, exacting adding machines and practical modern business equipment trained students in clerical work. The jingle of money effectively demonstrated business practices at the school store. Impatient ticket and token seekers kept C-28 busy.

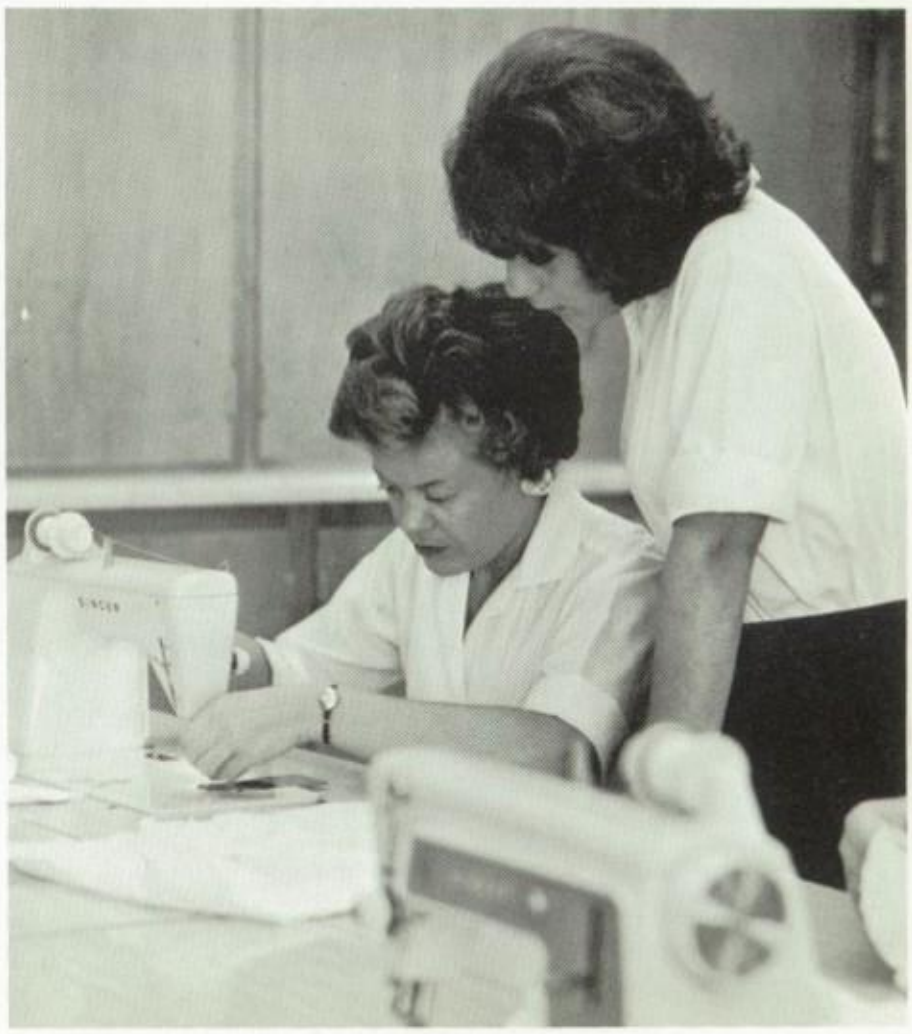
Dishwashers, sewing machines, clothes washers and dryers hummed as students created foods and fashions in the home economics section. Here tempting aromas often tantalized passing students.

Unlike the din of machines, the library offered a quiet spot for individual study. Students could find information within the rows of volumes and a moment of tranquil relaxation in the reading area.

Applause, criticism and laughter frequently issued from the Little Theatre, but quiet usually prevailed in C-11, the detention hall.

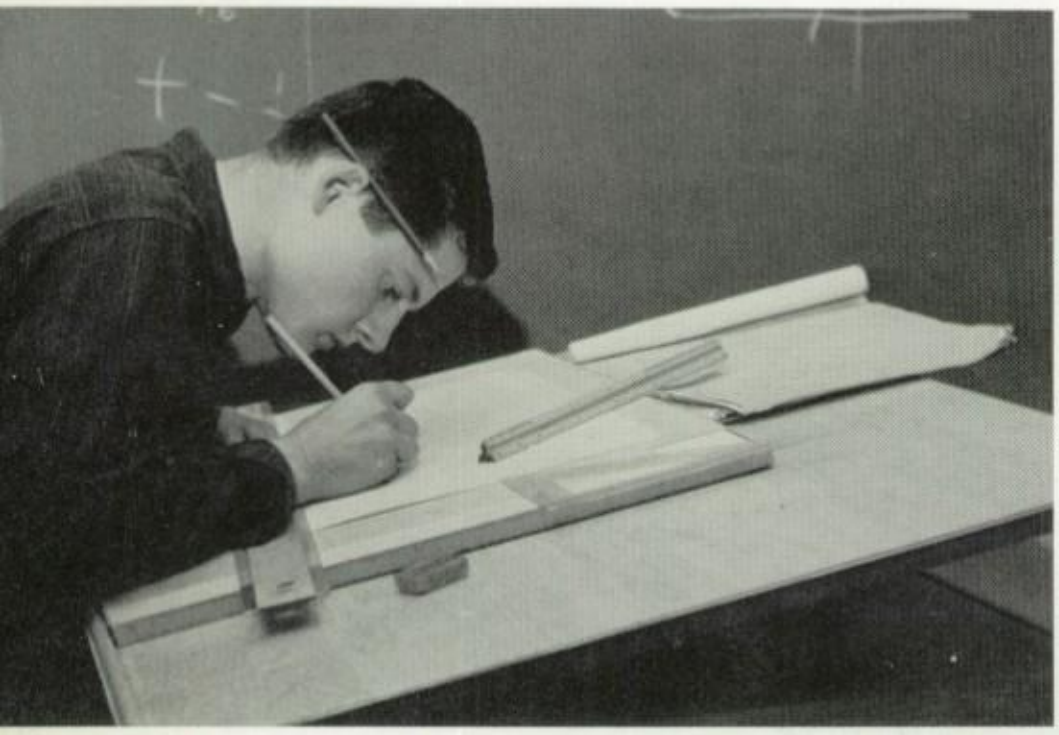
JOANN ONKEN AND MARGIE BOWEN teamed up to audit receipts and disbursements of school clubs and organizations. As supervisor of the school's activity accounts, Mr. Marg then prepared a complete report of financial operations.

BEGINNING WITH THE simpler things, Miss Johnson showed Carol Schneider of a Home Economics class how to thread the needle of a sewing machine.



1910 Endowment Started Beach Industrial Unit

NOW EMBARKED ON his year-long project in Architectural Drawing—full scale design of a three-bedroom house—Jim Schmitt bent intently over his drawing board. His extra pencil is fitted above his ear, and ruler and eraser are placed conveniently.



WITH CARE AND CAUTION Dave White pushed his sheet of plastic toward the band saw blade. Richard Morgan viewed the movement with an air of apprehension, knowing that the cut must be precise. The unit on plastics was incorporated into the General Shop course this year.

DAN CARTWRIGHT and Tom Galica are able to test the acidity and mineral content of soil samples in Agriculture IV. Representing another "electronic" breakthrough, the PH Soil Tester is one of four such machines in Wisconsin schools.

Appropriately placed between the academic units and the gym is the Beach section. Here minds employed in the classroom co-ordinate with the muscles exercised in the gym to produce physical actualities.

While art and woodworking made imagination visible, mechanical and architectural drawing put theoretical mathematics into concrete evidence of creativity. Science came into view when metal works and agriculture classes studied the mineral content and chemical composition of the earth. Using simulated equipment, driver education and motor mechanics classes demonstrated the responsibilities, management and operation of a car.

Endowed by far-sighted Mr. Beach in 1910, the Industrial Arts section related intellects with ideas to hands with purpose.

DIANE COATES BRAVED the intense heat emitted from the kiln in art class to see if her clay ware was medium or well done.

Hi, Don,
We sure had fun in school

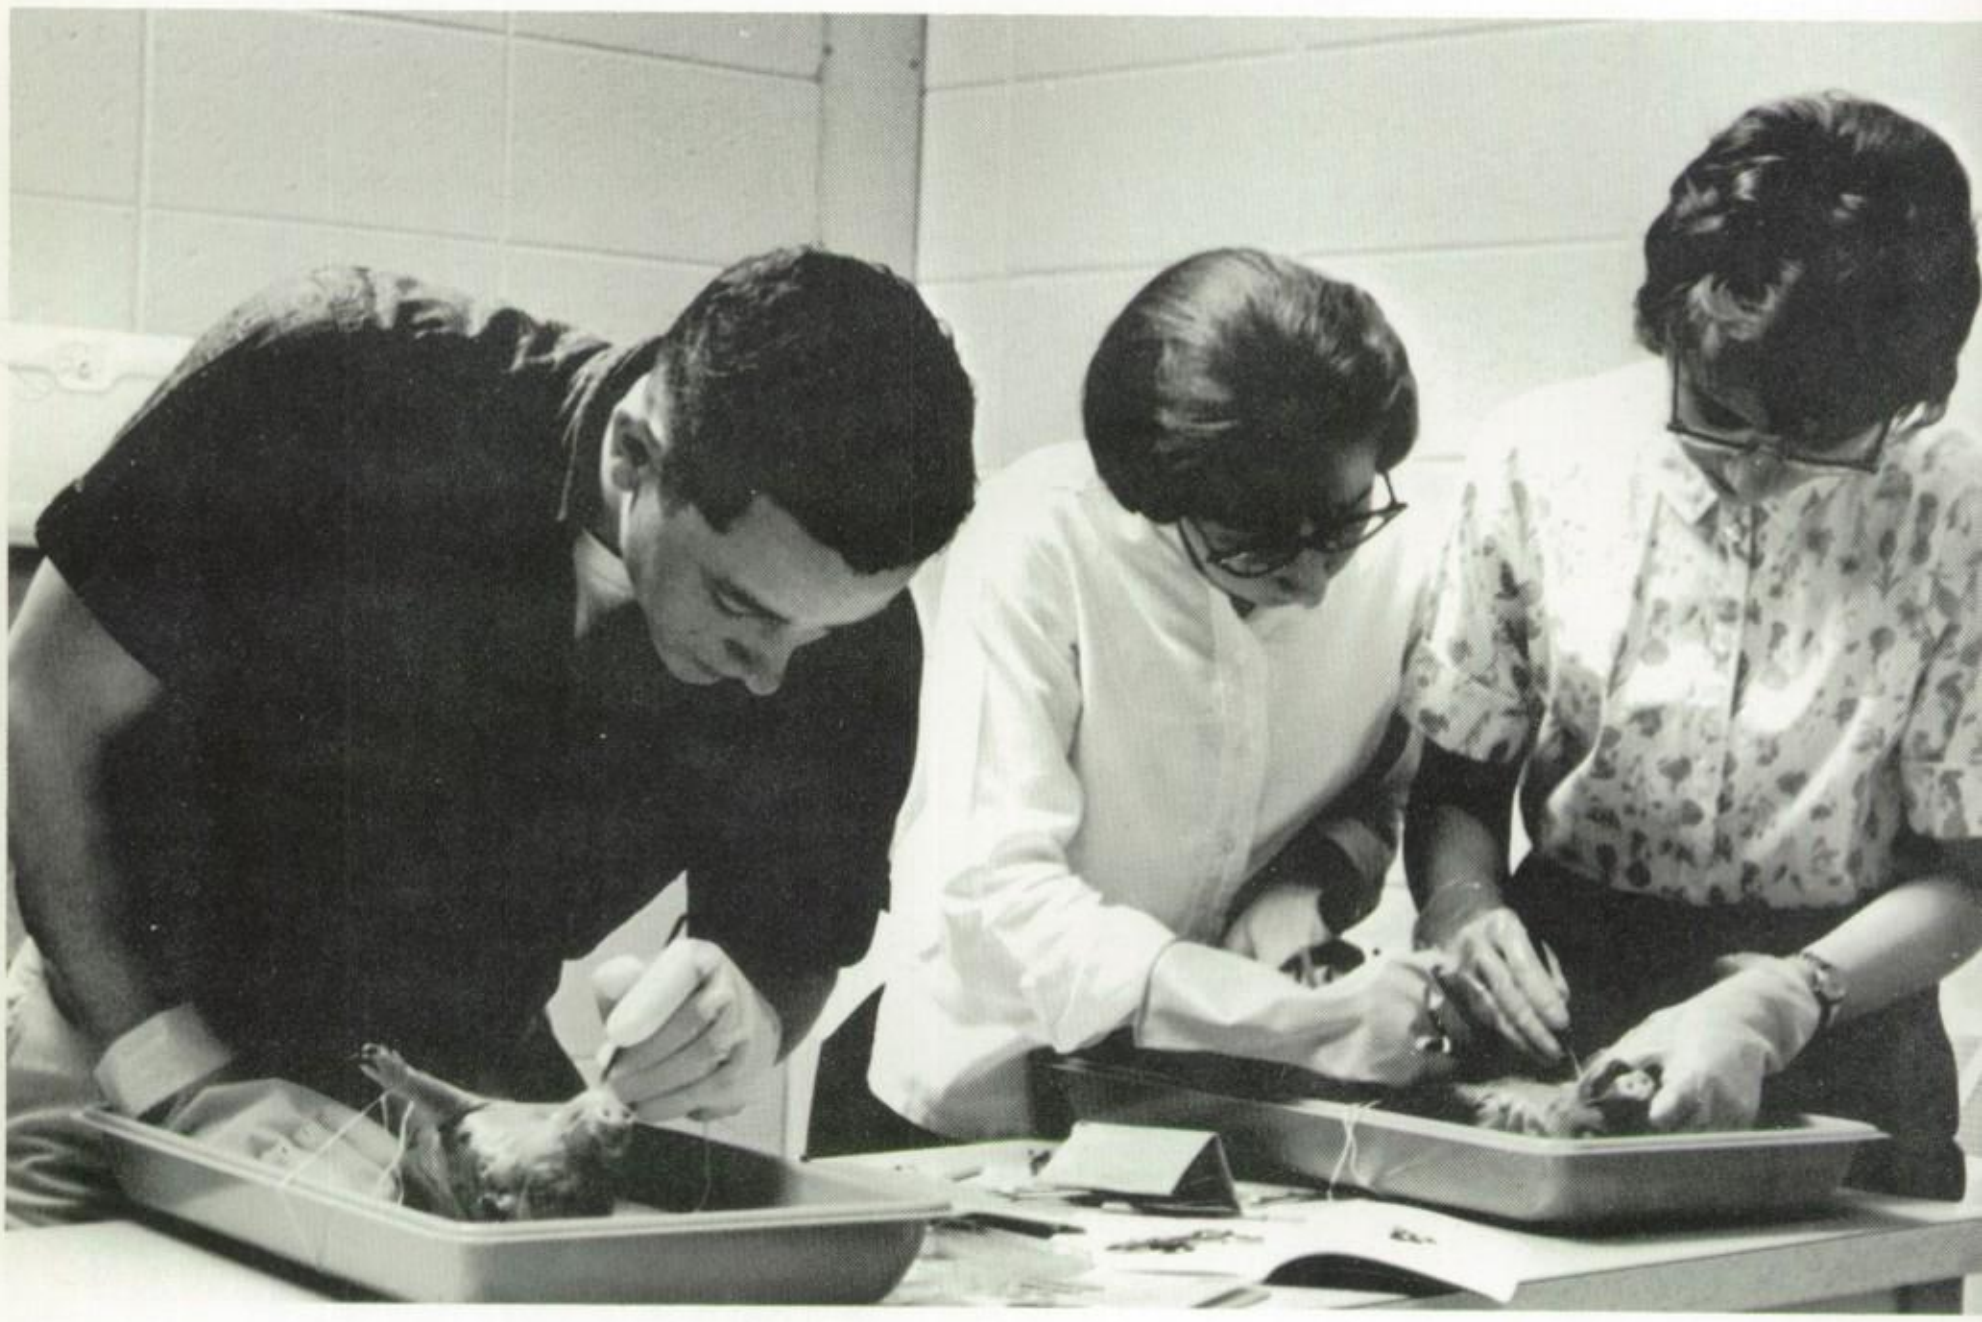
UNDER THE WATCHFUL EYE of Mr. Matschnig, Charles Stannard gradually eased a drive shaft assembly into place. Lawrence Wolff peered on intently before making his attempt.

Life and Natural Forces Probed in Science Wing



THE SMELL OF FORMALDEHYDE prevailed in a Biology II classroom as Wayne Schneider, Mary Blake and Barbara Roehl dissected a fetal pig according to the directions of a lab manual.

INCLUDING CHEMISTRY in the broad scope of Biology BSCS demanded more attention to detail for sophomores James Hill and John Irion.

GIVEN AN UNKNOWN SOLUTION, Lynn Newell observed the rate of precipitation and answered lab manual questions corresponding to the procedures involved in the quantitative analysis.

A tour of the Science Wing was an adventure in curiosity. In the classrooms, laboratories and demonstration areas, student minds investigated the mysteries of science with probing curiosity.

Biology invited research as it linked zoology, botany and anatomy into one overview of several sciences. Frogs, starch stains and photosynthesis added color to classes.

Notoriously odorous was the chemistry department as students explored the nature of elements and the composition of substances. Burned sulfur, breakage fees and hydrochloric acid became the symbols of chemistry.

Falling weights, flashing lights and whirring motors caught the curiosity of physics students. Combining advanced mathematics, logic and common sense, students scrutinized laws, actions and theories.

MR. HYMER OPERATED the Physics apparatus as Sue Pause, Vicki Hansen and Chris Priebe applied their knowledge of the slide rule to calculate the focal point of a light beam.

LIKE THE POLITE rabbit he was, "Chaucer" patiently waited at his cage door while Nancy Ebel fed "Milton." Raising rabbits was Nancy's year-long Biology II project.

IN SWIFT PURSUIT of the evasive soccer ball, junior girls, Sue Leist, Nancy Ackerman and Gail Zuege displayed their deft skills and hoped that their teacher's head was turned their way.

Each week 2,000 exhausted students dragged themselves from the distant gym where they had experienced fifty minutes of grueling exercise. In the mud and leaves of fall, they competed in soccer, archery and football. With the coming of snow, classes moved into the divided gym and balconies to play badminton, volleyball and basketball.

The off-season of outside sports afforded time to build squash pyramids, to balance on mats, to sharpen relay speeds and to complete the inevitable physical fitness tests. To keep pace with spring fever, the six physical education teachers stressed the graces of social dancing and prepared students in the skills of tennis, golf and other summer sports.

USING THE PRACTICE FIELD behind the school, two boys of a sophomore gym class demonstrated the snap from center as directed by Mr. Quandt.

DURING THE SPRING TRACK season, the regular gym classes got in on the act as Jim Audiss and Dale Klitzke stretched unused muscles in low hurdle practice sessions.

Christmas Season Observed by Caroling Choirs

A Cappella Choir set a brisk pace for forthcoming choral events as it presented Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man." Planned during the summer months and rehearsed early in the school year, the operetta was the first full-scale high school production employing the facilities of the new auditorium. Colorful full-length dresses and bright summer suits, elaborate sets and well-blended voices made the operetta an excellent beginning of the musical year.

Without any let-up from the strain of "The Music Man," the highly-rated choir traveled to Chetek, Wisconsin, to serve as a demonstration choir for a choral clinic. Mr. Leist was the clinician, working during the day with four high school choirs and directing a combined concert in the evening.

The Christmas Concert was next on the agenda and included all four choirs. The groups graciously performed before the rest of the school and then before the community in an evening performance. Mr. Leist and Mr. Von Felt directed the choirs in traditional carols, classical Christmas selections and modern holiday music.

Immediately after the Christmas Concert, the choirs read through new numbers in preparation for the Winter Festival. This concert was followed by the sectional and state tournaments and the Spring Festival of Melodies.

STANDING IN THE main entrance way on the day before Christmas Vacation, A Cappella treated students in the Commercial Wing with the "Carol of the Drum." Students in other wings heard different traditional carols.

Critics Laud Concert Band's Chicago Appearance

MR. CROFT WAS an avid spectator at this exciting football game, but worn-out son Timothy fought to keep his eyes open and found his father to be a comfortable armrest.

"When a football team is really 'up' for a game, it is unbeatable. The Oshkosh High School Band was 'up'; it was unbeatable." These were the words of a prominent official after he heard the Concert Band at the Midwest National Band Clinic in Chicago. The group was one of four bands in the nation to perform with the well-known conductor Norman Dello Joio.

Previous to the trip, the Concert Band joined with the Varsity Band to present Winter Bandtasia. Upon their return from the clinic, the band prepared for "Music for Moderns, Opus 9." This light-hearted production featured the many ensembles of both bands.

Across the hall from the band room, the Orchestra was busily working with its new director, Mr. Etling. Much time was spent as the musicians adjusted to Mr. Etling's directive movements, and the new leader recognized the talents of the orchestra members.

For the first time in history, the Madrigal Singers and the Orchestra blended to present a Christmas Dinner-Concert. The "O" Room was filled to capacity as interested persons enjoyed a buffet dinner followed by secular and traditional holiday music.

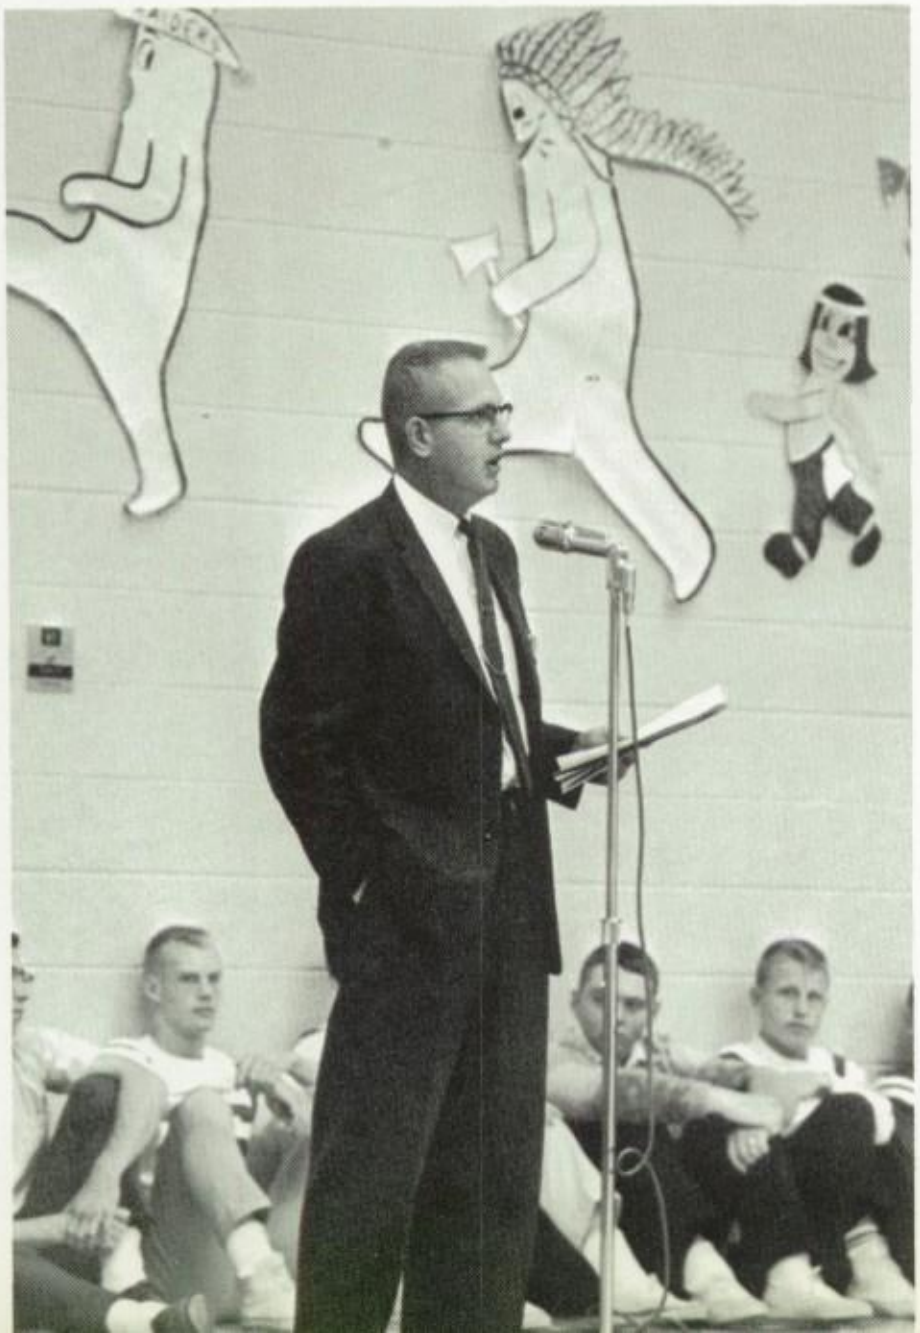
ACTIVITIES

Late hours, smuggled food and borrowed rides; approaching Notebook deadlines, gooey Index paste-ups and uncounted ballots; quartet try-outs, costume fitting and strained rehearsals—activity preparation was work mingled with fun.

We see ourselves behind stage, on stage or in the audience of "The Music Man" and "The Diary of Anne Frank." We remember the chicken wire stuffing, crepe paper mums and bulletin boards of Homecoming. We see ourselves going to Student Council and Delegate Assembly meetings or correcting class office candidates' speeches as O'Neil members.

Sometimes it may have seemed useless—all the time and energy spent in perfecting scenes, speeches and stories. Then the outcome proved the satisfaction of desiring perfection. In all our activities, we see ourselves getting ready, waiting, hoping—then, when the final production resulted—pride.



Conniving Music Man Beguiles Citizens of River City, Iowa

As the curtain rose on A Cappella Choir's presentation of "The Music Man," the audience felt itself being jolted along with the passengers of the Rock Island Line. Traveling salesmen on the train argued about sales methods and spoke in disdainful tones of a man named Hill.

The scene shifted to conservative River City, Iowa, where con man Harold Hill tried to win Marion Paroo's heart and to hoodwink the townspeople. As the play progressed, she resisted, he insisted, she relented. A marked change took place in River City as Professor Hill's enthusiasm infected the community.

The curtain fell, and the orchestra, led by Operetta Director Fred Leist, struck up "Seventy-Six Trombones." The audience involuntarily clapped along, breaking the rhythm only to acknowledge bowing performers. The cast also included a live Shetland pony.

"The Music Man," by Meredith Wilson, was presented in the new High School-Civic Auditorium. In contrast to the "theatre-in-the-round" of the Rec gym, the new auditorium offered a professional stage, a greater seating capacity and more elaborate sets.

Don,
I'll never forget the thrill I had when you jumped on the trampoline. You have a lot of perseverance and I admire you for it. Congratulations on graduating. Good Luck Always Dick Meyer

DALE KLITZKE, the oratorial "Mayor Shinn," tried to get the attention of his "fellow River Citizens" before beginning his dynamic Fourth of July celebration speech.

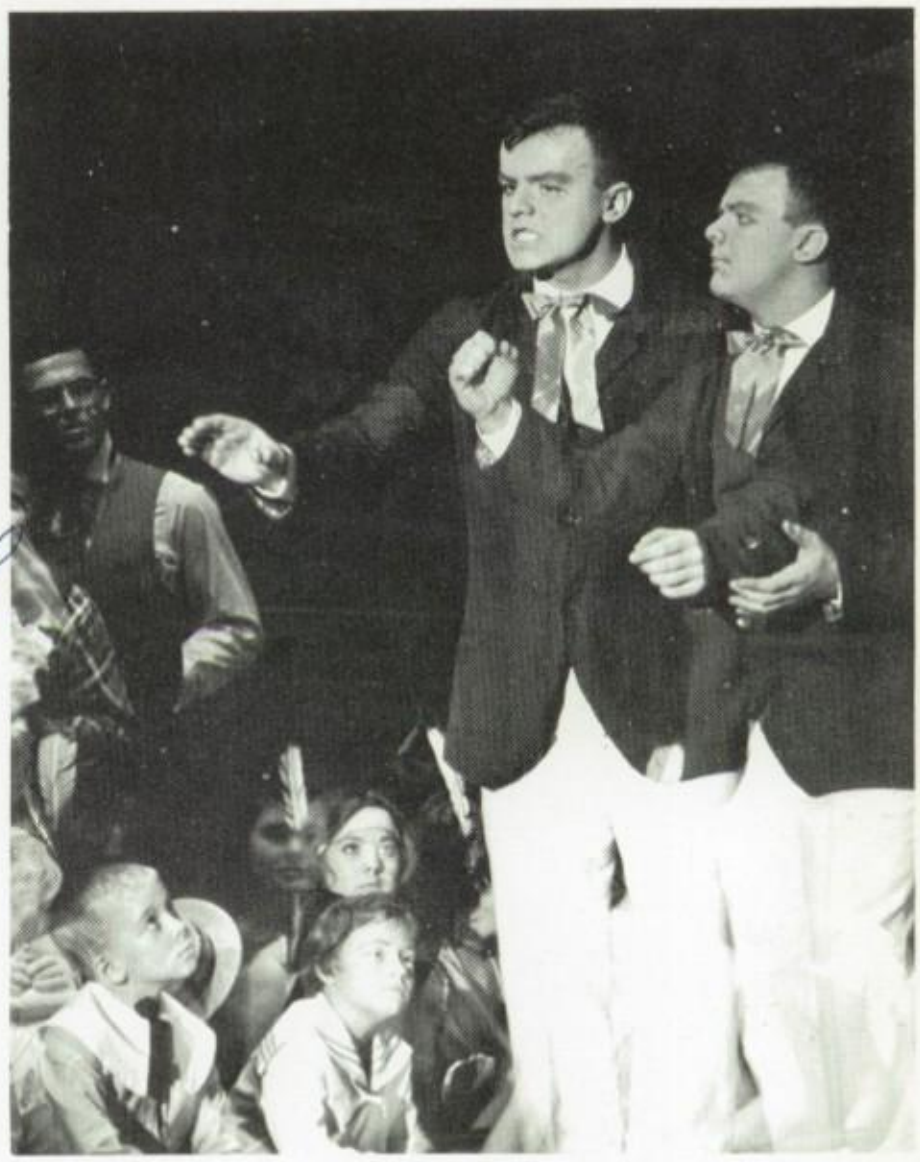
IN A BACK-STAGE dressing room, Rhoda Laabs was mirrored as "Marian Paroo" primly adjusting her hat.

P.S. Quant will have to work all year to get that tramp fired.

NOT ALL THE ACTION of "The Music Man" was on stage. Kathy Wright and Rune Dyve, members of the dancing cast, enjoyed the production from backstage, while waiting their turn in the spotlight.

IGNORING THE CALL of "River City Junction," the traveling salesmen argued the merits of knowing sales territory and slammed the reputation of "Professor Hill."

THE FACADE OF Roy Lewis, "Professor Hill," was torn away by the camera. The man known to the citizens of River City was one concerned with the health and welfare of children. The real "Professor" stood revealed as an avaricious salesman.



BEFORE EXCLAIMING THE WONDERS of "Gary, Indiana," "Winthrop" related the schemes of "Professor Hill" to his patient mother and skeptical sister.

FOR THE SECOND consecutive year, Mr. Miller's homeroom won first prize in the Homecoming Float Competition. The "striped kitty" was fully animated. Its tail wagged. Its eyes flashed. It odorized the spectators.

COLORFULLY PAINTED to camouflage its years, this entrant in the informal parade in front of the school slowed down enough to allow its streamers to droop, while driver Mike Dougherty looked backward.

Sinking of Manitowoc Ships Climaxes Eventful Homecoming

School spirit soared and expectation mounted as students arrayed in blue and white caught the fever of Homecoming 1963. It was one of the few days that all students were allowed to wear slacks or shorts. Jaunty hats were popular, and senior girls wore the customary white mums.

Bulletin boards and court displays confidently predicted the outcome of the game. The Manitowoc "Ships" were colorfully but brutally sunk, raided, bottled and steered on the rocks. Seven winning displays were rewarded for their originality and humor.

The afternoon pep rally provided students with the opportunity to release their collective zest. New male and female members of the faculty provided separate pep skits. Mr. Warren Rahn talked on problems of football officiating. Football team captain Steve Scheuermann crowned Homecoming Queen Myra Jovaag. The Pep Band concluded its part in the program with the playing of "Hail Alma Mater."

Friday night shoppers, faculty and students not actually riding or marching in the parade, lined Main Street to watch the parade of thirty floats and six bands. An unofficial parade had formed earlier as many splashed and spattered cars were driven up and down Eagle Street.

The busy, exciting day was climaxed with an Indian triumph over Manitowoc followed by a victory dance.

Don,
Remember the fun we had at Bruce's party with our little twisting contest? Lots of luck to you in the future.
"Sandy Schuff"

CAPTIVATED BY THE spirited pep rally held in its honor, was the Homecoming Court: Sophomore Karen Boettner, Queen Myra Jovaag, Senior Connie Montalbano and Junior Sue Parker.

ALL TALKING AT ONCE, several members of Pythagorean Council, Mike Weidemann, Sue Quast, Mary Ann Haboeck, Steve Roehl and Nancy Borchers attempted to direct Karen Boettner, sophomore attendant, to her position in the Homecoming Parade.

DUE TO THE NOISE created by the crowd at a pep rally, the quarterback of the faculty football team, Mr. Spatz, raised his hands and called for silence so that his team members could hear the signals.

NEITHER NAZI OCCUPATION nor the dampened spirits of those around her could daunt Carol Farnell, "Anne." She raised everyone's morale by improvising Hanukkah gifts.

Nazi Persecution Unmasked in Sensitive, Young Girl's Diary

The lights dimmed, the audience hushed, but the curtain did not rise. A recording of the confident voice of a sensitive, young girl narrating her own diary followed. The audience, put in a thoughtful reverie, was ready for "The Diary of Anne Frank," the first completely dramatic offering presented in the High School-Civic Auditorium.

The diary, one of the world's most famous, was written by Anne Frank after she went into hiding to escape Nazi persecution. It is the simple, truthful story of a young girl growing up in the strange confines of a refuge. Anne's love for her father and later for Peter, her growing pains aggravated by her mother and her common misunderstandings with others in the "secret annex" were revealed in the diary. As written in her own words, Anne's remarkable observations of other human beings and their relationships to her and Anne's thoughts and understanding of world situations, proved her to have wisdom and insight beyond her thirteen years.

Sets by Pen and Pallet Club and lighting by Stage Crew were especially effective. Because the action took place in three rooms of the hiding place, staging provided a challenging problem. With able lighting and clever sets, the stage was divided into Anne's room, the common living room-kitchen and Peter's room.

AS A PRACTICAL JOKE, Bob Boardman, "Peter Van Daan," dangled an imaginary cat over the head of Ron Spanbauer, "Dr. Dussel," who was allergic to cat's fur. The joke had its desired result as the doctor coughed and sputtered.

Don,

I'll never forget the time we went to see the "Birds". That was quite a movie.

Best of luck always to a wonderful guy. You're a lot of fun to be with.

Sandy Koehn

THE CLIMAX OF the romantic theme in "Anne Frank" was reached when Carol Farnell, "Anne," found herself in love with Bob Boardman, "Peter Van Daan."

JACK KUESTER, "MR. KRALER," was the only source of hope and encouragement for the Franks as he brought news and food to the isolated family.

DESPITE THE FACT that they were confined to their hiding place during the holidays, Anne, her family and friends found comfort and reassurance in the celebration of Hanukkah.

O'Neil Acknowledges Social, Scholastic Abilities

Many clubs, classes, activities and sports represented in one small group could have defined the O'Neil Chapter of the National Honor Society. Since one of the basic requirements for membership was leadership in many school activities, almost every facet of OHS life was represented. Although not an active group in itself, the honor society required activity in other groups.

These cast members, club leaders, co-editors and class officers were scholastically outstanding as well as active in school affairs. They found a happy medium between social involvement and scholastic obligation. Actually there were two groups of O'Neil—those honored at the end of their junior year and those honored at the end of their senior year.

Upon acceptance into the National Honor Society, new O'Neil members and their parents were welcomed at a tea. At this time the full meaning of membership and the long history of the society was explained by former adviser Miss Todd.

Advising campaign methods, correcting candidates' speeches and managing voting were undertaken by O'Neil members during the week of class office elections. Guided by adviser Mr. Mitchell, these class leaders helped in the election of future leaders.

CANDIDATES FOR CLASS OFFICE, campaign managers and O'Neil members attended a meeting where Mr. Mitchell outlined the rules of electioneering. Assistance in speech organization was then volunteered by members of the O'Neil Honor Society.

Apathetic Students Force Index Format Change

A sometimes printer named Ben Franklin once said, "A man who says money will do everything may well be suspected of doing everything for money." Well, there is one thing money will do: print a school newspaper. Despite staff publicity campaigns, subscriptions lagged. Publication of the second issue of the paper came nearly a month after distribution of the first.

Revival and survival came to the 75 member staff and 700 plus subscribers quietly. The technical details of the breakthrough probably escaped most of the newspaper's staff members and nearly all of its subscribers.

Issue number three of the 1963 Index was published, and readers had their first look at the financial possibility—a facsimile newspaper.

In headlines and general appearances there is a resemblance to the old product of the print shop. Once haughty editors no longer treated typists with disdain. The stature of adviser Mr. Biendarra took on new luster as he demonstrated his ability to type perfect copy.

At the end of the first semester, the staff was discussing the possibility of a paper once every two or three weeks—a publication schedule that staff members and subscribers had not dared to dream about for a couple of years.

Approaching Deadlines Dominate Activity in W-10

As we see ourselves seeing others might well have been the theme of the Notebook staff members. As they reported and recorded the events of the school year, this closely-working group inadvertently grew in understanding of teen-age relationships and matured through self-evaluation.

Working on the staff put one into a different world. Just as cast members and club officers understood the activity of their organization, Notebook staff members knew the plans, methods and secrets which were the annual's way of life. There was always work to be done, but always it was done as a group with the end result being satisfaction.

The Notebook office was many things to the staff—a workroom where copy was rewritten, names were indexed and 3-R's were erased. A study hall where Math III, English Literature and World History tests were discussed and complaints registered. A soapbox where Constitutional rights were argued and image projecting was promoted. A home base where books were stored, friendships were built, lunches were stashed and confidences were exchanged. Above anything, for the intimate few, the Notebook office was a place to study, a place to relax, a place to have fun through a common working effort and a place to call "home."

Governing Bodies Consolidate Student Interests

Greater enrollment and expanded club activities demanded that OHS establish a representative governing form. Those things that were too all-inconclusive for several single students to do were completed by the organized Student Council. Members of this representative body were elected from homerooms. Delegate Assembly was composed of club officers, club delegates and other interested students.

Student Council served, inspired and encouraged students with its projects, plans and programs. Council and Assembly members sold Wisconsin calendars, candy and Christmas Dance tickets to support AFS. As a group, Student Council sponsored this year's exchange student, "Zi"—a project that students could not do alone.

Student Council stimulated patriotism by supervising the flag raising ceremonies. Senior girls and boys were selected by their class to be responsible for the flag. Student Council also initiated the Victory Flag to be flown whenever any school-supported group was victorious or honored. This inspiration could not have been done by several students.

Promotion of Student Code Week and student supervision of the Snack Bar were undertaken by the Council, hoping to encourage the student body to assume responsibilities. Additional efforts along similar lines were the class parties and May Dance—again activities which individual students could not accomplish acting singularly.

ONLY THE PRESIDENT of the Student Council could boast that he was always greeted by beautiful smiles. Gavel in hand, Richard Kester turned to be welcomed by Vice President Myra Jovaag, Secretary Jane Borchers and Treasurer Kate Fox.

American Field Service Brings "Zi" Over 10,000 Miles to OHS

ALTHOUGH A LONG WAY from home, Zi enjoyed his birthday at a party given by Student Council. Here, he and Kate Fox shared an extra piece of birthday cake.

Dear "Alma Mater,"

The wonderful days we had together have come to the end. Thank you very much for being so helpful, making my stay here a successful one.

Now that I've experienced and learned quite a lot, I find that Americans are very friendly and "fast moving" and that your standard of living is pretty high compared to ours—although we have one of the highest in Asia.

Back in Malaya, I go to a school of about 400 students—all boys! As a senior, I carry nine subjects. My school is a residential one. It starts at 7:30 a.m. and is over at 3:45 p.m., with two breaks for snacks and lunch. After tea, we have compulsory activities—no one is to stay in dormitories. Prep hours are from 8:00 to 9:30 p.m. except for educational movies or society meetings.

The hard day ends at 10:00 p.m.—everyone in bed! We can only go out to town during weekends. On Friday, school ends at 11:30 a.m. when we parade to the Mosque for the weekly congregation and noon prayer.

In school we wear uniforms—white shirts and blue shorts. The "prefects" are in white with crimson ties. Prefects are selected students working together for the betterment of the school.

With the formation of Malaysia, we hope to have a brighter image in the eyes of the world: not as a "mighty," but a "happy" Malaysia, where many peoples can work and live together in peace and harmony.

My thousand thanks also go to the AFS who have given me this golden opportunity to see "what America is." When I get home, I'll tell my fellow citizens of your way of life and thinking, and of your warm hospitality.

There isn't a nicer word than "terima kaseh" to express my ever-lasting gratitude to the O'Haras for kindly treating me as "one of them."

It's real hurting to say "good-bye." If you ever come to Malaysia, do contact me. I'll treat you with "satay" —Malayan tourist favorite for the "hamburger" I've enjoyed so much.

CLUBS

High school education offered a great deal more than classes, tests and assignments. Through organizations, OHS afforded a testing ground for responsibilities, a meeting place for friendship and a research center into the opportunities of the future.

Conversely, organizations at OHS offered education. The "Future" clubs gave members insight into their chosen careers. Without actually taking the risk of employment involvement, future nurses, farmers, teachers and business leaders learned about the promises and problems of their professions.

Stage Crew, SLSC and Key Club taught responsibility, citizenship and cooperation as members served the school and the community.

Many clubs were formed and joined because of interest, friendships and participation possibilities. Lettermens' Club, GAA and MIAA emphasized sports activities. Similarly interested students banded together in Art, French, Pep and Latin Clubs.

As clubs, we see ourselves learning, serving and participating.

Jon,
all's been a pleasure to know. You're really good on your accordion.
Congradulations and Good luck always.

FBLA Surveys Efficiency of Modern Business

Modern business and the future it held for them were the primary interests of Future Business Leaders of America members. In order to manage financial affairs after graduation, club members strove to learn the many facets of the work-a-day world.

Using techniques which any businessman knows, club members helped the school by encouraging improvement in scholarship, promoting school spirit and improving relationships between the school and the business community.

Looking ahead to the future, the young business leaders sought ways to better their own working knowledge of the business world. Self-confidence, as in all attempted goals, was one of the most important objectives. This self-reliance was second only to the learning of pleasant aggressiveness in business leadership.

Miss Schatzka and Miss Vorpahl ably directed their advisees in the sale of "dress-up" day carnations and stationery. A special committee viewed many examples and then designed the blue Indian-head stationery. Future Business Leaders also compiled the informative faculty directory and worked on a window display during National Education Week.

The greatest project undertaken by FBLA was the Johnson Hills' "take-over" day. This practical trial gave members the opportunity of actual on-the-job training. Members acted as sales clerks, wrapped packages and helped customers.

Pen and Pallet Art Exhibits Brighten Drab Halls

A rebirth, an awakening—the Renaissance came to OHS. A new and growing appreciation of art was gradually instilled in students and faculty as Pen and Pallet proudly exhibited its members' work. The library showcase, the cafeteria bulletin-walls and Beach section bulletin boards were transformed into art galleries. Hall traffic slowed when new mosaic, water color and etching displays brightened the formerly drab corridors. To spread its intended renaissance into the community, Pen and Pallet, in association with the Art Department, hosted a tea and open house. Parents and interested citizens were invited to tour the workrooms and to view paintings and projects of promising students.

The organization had a rebirth within itself as it changed its name from Art Club to the more imaginative Pen and Pallet. Reorganization of the group was directed by new advisers, Mr. Bunda and Mr. Evans. The club grew from 10 to 50 members as art students awakened to the need of extra-curricular work.

Sets and slides occupied the time of Pen and Pallet members. The realistic library, a moving train and elaborate shop fronts, constructed by Pen and Pallet, were a vital part of "The Music Man." The group also developed a slide collection of famous paintings for reference use.

Revived French Club Sponsors Singing Contest

GATHERED AROUND BOB Boardman, Randy Case, Dennis Waterman, Joan Gomoll, Sue Hough and Gail Bloechl listened to the chords of French Christmas carols.

Chocolate eclairs, a four letter word meaning "with" and airline expenses are merely hints of the activities of French Club. The chocolate eclairs, samples of French pastries, were relished at the Christmas party during which Bob Boardman and Randy Case led the members in favorite carols and the popular "Dominique."

The usual drudgery of vocabulary became fun as the members worked out crossword puzzles and played "Frencho," a derivative of Bingo with a French twist.

Airline expenses were investigated as part af an imaginary bicycle trip through France and Europe. Maps were distributed to aid vagabonds in their planning. To add to the wanderlust spirit, films, speakers and slides advertised the possibilities of holiday tours or practical study years in France.

The French Song Contest and Talent Show attracted the most attention and was the highlight of the program year.

Formed from the remnants of the Modern Language Club, French Club was reorganized and recognized this year. The organization, advised by Miss Weber and Mr. Anderson, was created to familiarize members with French culture, customs and language not otherwise attained in the classroom.

Banquet Preserves Roman Customs and Culture

It has been said that being a slave is the best job to have at the Latin Club Banquet. These prospective members saw the gala Roman feast as they ran messages, captured food and sang for their patrician masters. These "citizens" wore sheets elaborately draped as togas and ate authentic Roman food.

The Roman Banquet was the main activity of Latin Club. Dividing into committees, everyone contributed time and learned more about Roman culture as a benefit. Entertaining skit scripts were rehearsed, menu planning sessions were held and slave sale notices were posted in preparation for the banquet.

Symposium Promotes Exchange of Ideas, Beliefs

Among the ancient Greeks the symposium, which followed a banquet, was characterized by intellectual or entertaining conversation. Therefore, The Symposium was an appropriate name for a club which was characterized by an exchange of opinions and ideas. Unlike the Greeks, Symposium members did not have banquets; however, several unofficial picnics and a Christmas party added social interest.

Because of its small membership, The Symposium was unique. Members worked as a group but retained their identity through individual thought contributions. The Test Ban Treaty, Goldwater and Rockefeller, Racial Problems and the Decadent American Society were some of the discussion topics. Although personal opinions instead of research formed the nucleus of the debates, new viewpoints were developed, and discussions frequently continued long after the meeting's adjournment.

At the Christmas meeting, the group was entertained as Mr. Zeinert, the club adviser, showed some of his slides taken on a state department sponsored trip to India. Although he studied in the morning, he had ample time to snap pictures of many facets of life in India.

A new innovation of the club was the creation of the office of treasurer. Prior to this year, members had not found it necessary to collect dues to finance activities; however, mounting expenses forced such action.

Key Club Stresses Service to Community, School

The key of the Oshkosh High School Key Club was service—year-round service to the community, conscientious support to the school and rewarding satisfaction to the members. By providing assistance, the Key Club had the underlying goals of inspiring good citizenship and sparking leadership.

The primary task completed by the Key Club was ushering. The members dutifully seated patrons attending "The Music Man," Community Player productions, Town and Gown presentations, a morticians' convention and "The Diary of Anne Frank." The group took over the spotlight when they presented a parody on nursery rhymes at a pep rally.

Money-raising projects included a "rompin', stompin' " dance featuring Dee Rob and the Starliners and the concession sales at the Wisconsin State Baseball Tournament. To the Home Economics Department, the club contributed some of its earnings for the purchase of a bookcase for the living room. In addition, the club addressed Christmas cards on behalf of patients of Pleasant Acres.

Formed by the Lake Shore Kiwanis Club, the Key Club concept was not unique to just OHS. Joined with the Lourdes High School Key Club, the idea became city-wide.

FNA Travels to Nursing Schools and Hospitals

Scalpel, suction, stimulant, suture—these were familiar words which echoed through the craniums of young nurses-to-be. Whether obstetrics, surgery, anesthesiology or geriatrics was to be the focal point of their interest, all the members of Future Nurses of America organized to gain a better understanding of the nursing field in general.

A tour of Madison General Hospital, the University Hospital and St. Mary's Hospital at Madison for the annual field trip initiated members to the professional smell of alcohol, the daily routine of temperature and blood pressure-taking, and the over-all friendly but meticulous attitude of people engaged in the medical profession. Guest speakers at meetings stressed the requirements of either the three or four-years' training program and the importance of considering both.

School and community service keynoted this year's activities as members volunteered for health room duty and assisted professional nurses with the tuberculin skin tests. Donated toys, food and clothing, along with the effort and good will of the members, comprised the Christmas basket for a needy Oshkosh family.

A FNA PROJECT was the collection of food and toys for needy families in Oshkosh. This basket was loaded by Sue Zellmer and Ann Grunske.

GAA Accentuates Perfection of Athletic Skills

SUSAN WAHLGREN AND BARBARA BAXTER registered excitement. Their team led going into the tenth frame. Scorer Dawn Kile remained composed, almost apprehensive, as she watched the pin count of the team's fourth member.

Blistered feet, pulled leg muscles and sprained fingers could not daunt participants of the Girls' Athletic Association. These girls realized the need to exercise unused muscles, understand sporting rules and develop character through competition. Regular gym classes could not satisfy their enthusiasm and proved only to be an introduction to sports.

Practice and helpful hints were offered in the individual sports of archery, golf and tennis. Tumbling and trampoline workouts provided limbering exercise and also promoted the necessity of safety precautions. Teams were organized to play basketball, volleyball and badminton. Team bowling did not take place in school, but was popular. New friendships, group cooperation and loyalty were developed naturally in team sports.

Medals, trophies and letters, which more than compensated for the aching muscles and tired bones, were awarded at the end of the year. The most coveted prize, a letter, was presented to girls who had accumulated 500 points through participation in a victorious team and regular attendance. Trophies were given to winning bowling teams and medals to basketball and volleyball squads.

FTA Members Encouraged by Taste of Teaching

A combination of service, interest and friendship completed the year for members of Future Teachers of America. In conference rooms before and after school, conscientious members met with small groups to serve the school as tutors. This practical view of teaching helped members as they assisted others.

Bound by their interest in the teaching profession, FTA members sought to investigate the possibilities of careers in this field. Speakers from the college, films, a demonstration from the School for the Deaf and panel discussions assisted members in the formulating stages of their future plans. Members were given the opportunity to visit other schools and discuss problems with outside teachers. To get more first-hand information on their intended profession, the members entertained and talked with the faculty at a tea during National Education Week.

A closer feeling of friendship and club unity prevailed as the Future Teachers worked together to produce a pep rally. Assisted by club advisers, Miss Link and Mr. Evans, FTA presented a comical skit calling from the past such characters as Buddha, Cleopatra, Christopher Columbus and Napoleon.

SLSC Manages Full-Time Paperback Bookstore

The most important of SLSC's activities this year was the initiation of a badly-needed bookstore. The bookstore established a place at the school where paperback references and popular literature could be purchased. In addition to the behind-the-scenes work of any library —reference work, circulation and fine collections—the club members helped with physical and financial upkeep of the bookstore.

Fulfillment of the word "service" and understanding of library work were the goals of the Student Librarians' Service Club. During each school day members of the club volunteered at least one study hall to help the students in the library. Typical of libraries and librarians all over the country, SLSC took part in Library Week and the annual Book Fair.

Club meetings were held twice a month and were guided by the club adviser, Miss Rollinson. Requirements for membership included voluntary study hall service, adequate grades and payment of dues. Discussions at meetings included project plans, questions on career work in library service and comments and answers from guest speakers.

Pythagorean Council Presents The "Different" in Mathematics

Since 1934, the Pythagorean Council's members have discussed what the uninitiated would call the esoteric by-ways of mathematics—principles and theories not generally known. However, films secured from industry and government dealing with the subjects of satellites and space exploration attracted large audiences.

The Council opened the year with 70 members and two new teachers, Mr. Ross and Mr. Prielipp, as club advisers.

Interested students rose before dawn to catch a 5 a.m. bus for the annual all-day trip to the Chicago Museum of Science and Industry and tour of O'Hara Field. For a theoretical view of mathematics, they toured the new math department building at the University of Wisconsin and witnessed the operations of its electronic computer installation.

The organization paid entry fees of all the school's outstanding math students in the state math contest. It also sponsored the annual geometry prize of $15, the Ruth Labdel Award. Funds for these projects were raised through membership dues and through the sale of refreshments at basketball games.

Future Farmers Adapt Theories to Actual Use

Most clubs ended their calendar year in the spring as the school completed its year. However, Future Farmers of America met throughout the year. By the very nature of the club, summer months held the most promise for the members. Even in the coldest winter weather, the Future Farmers planned for and looked forward to the state and county fairs held in August.

As a group, FFA members sold Christmas cards and rat bait, participated in roller skating parties and presented "an apple to the teacher." As individuals, members studied, employed, recorded and compared advanced scientific farming methods.

Drama Club Objectives Unaffected by Renaming

In Shakespearean times the sock was the symbol of comedy as was the buskin or boot of tragedy. In its search for a new name, Drama Club could not have decided upon a more appropriate one than Sock and Buskin. This was not the first renaming of the club. It was once known as Junior and Senior Masque.

Sock and Buskin produced the first purely dramatic offering in the new Oshkosh High School Civic Auditorium. For the premier the group chose to present "The Diary of Anne Frank," directed by Mr. Goetzman, the new adviser of the club.

Intramurals Emphasize Participation, Achievement

The noise coming from the boys' portion of the gym was produced by the members in Men's Intramural Athletic Association. The club was organized to give the boys a varied athletic program beyond their regular gym classes. To give the boys the challenge of competition and the sense of improvement was also the goal of the club. The club gave points, and those boys who achieved the required number went to Milwaukee to see the Braves play.

Splits, spares and gutter balls were the calls heard from the boys who participated in bowling. This sport did not take place at OHS, but proved to be the most popular sport in MIAA.

Traveling, lay-up and hook shot were the terms heard in the balconies where basketball was played. Separated according to class and then divided into teams, the boys played in a "round robin."

Birdie, green and fore were uttered by the boys who participated in golf at the City Golf Club. The practice lowered their scores to near something resembling par.

Love, backhand shot and match were terms heard from the boys who, for the first time, played on the new tennis courts in back of school.

Experience Gives Stage Crew Mastery of Lights and Curtains

A club that was more than a club. A service organization that performed more than service. A learning situation that was outside the limits of the formalized classroom setting. That was Stage Crew.

Until the formal opening of the Civic Auditorium late last spring, crews were assembled for the various school theatrical performances on a catch-as-catch-can basis. The new school facility, with its plethora of lighting and sound equipment, demanded that knowledgeable students be at the controls.

As auditorium assistant manager in charge of stage equipment, Mr. Baxter decided to organize a permanent group, then provide them with the skills necessary to do the job. This was a combined learning process for students and adviser. Unfortunately, flaws in sound equipment operation could only be discovered and corrected as the equipment was used.

The eight well-trained members of Stage Crew provided the back stage talent that made productions this year technically effective. The lighting of the River City foot bridge scene, the recording of Anne's diary and the fade-out green spotlight of the Christmas concert gave originality to the productions and indicated the versatile talents of the group.

Lettermen Supervise Basketball Concession Sale

CENTER FRONT: President Gary Wood. IN BACK: Treasurer Steven Scheuermann, Vice President Michael Zuehlke, Secretary John McCarthy.

Membership in Lettermen's Club was small, not because OHS lacked athletes but because the 22 members put forth a little added effort. On the basketball court, on the cinder path, on the golf green and on the twenty yard line, some players strained their endurance and carried through with determination. These outstanding athletes were rewarded with a letter and an automatic membership in Lettermen's Club.

Friday was the day that the Lettermen were the most prominent. At the pep rally the bright blue sweaters reminded students of the accomplishments of the athletes and made students more aware of school spirit. Throughout the day the Lettermen unconsciously sold the idea of attending the forthcoming game. In the evening while some members were participating in the game, other Lettermen sold refreshments and kept spectators off the playing area.

Arousing school spirit on Homecoming, the Lettermen stationed themselves at strategic locations in the building and sold blue and white crepe paper mums. Students then proceeded to find countless places to wear the mums. The "O" Room Snack Bar, when used during basketball games, was under the management of the Lettermen's Club. Leasing the refreshment center to other organizations brought in money for the club and also relieved it of the responsibilities involved.

Energetic Pep Club Members Raise Faltering School Spirit

If anyone tried to reinforce decadent school spirit, Pep Club members did. Through its many activities, the club attempted to arouse students to recognize the fighting Indians. A large 218 membership in itself strengthened pep and interest.

Selling booster buttons, introducing pennants and checking coats at basketball games were methods of raising money. Pep rallies provided an excellent opportunity for Pep Club to reach its ultimate goal of instilling enthusiasm. The club arranged for other clubs to present clever skits. Members also painted and put up signs on the gym walls. Introductions, name tags and refreshments for the fathers of the football players were provided by Pep Club at the annual Dad's Day Game.

The Pom Pom Squad, a newly formed group, was under the direction of Pep Club. The squad members enlivened basketball half-time intermissions with their precision dance routine.

SPORTS

"Watch 'em Indians Watch 'em," "Fight Team Fight"—these were "battle cries" familiar to students who faithfully attended pep rallies and games. Although sore throats and headaches often were the after-affects of an exciting contest, they were easily cured by a dose of victory medicine.

Despite the sometimes cold and dismal weather of the football season, avid fans packed the bleachers to cheer for the Indian gridders. From the first jump-ball to the last rebound, OHS cagers proved to be able competitors for opponents. Spring brought out a variety of sportsmen from the "big bats" of the baseball team to the "hole-in-one" golfers.

Top-rated teams required the knowledge of coaches, the training and drive of athletes and the loyalty of students. Win or lose, nothing united our school more than the healthy threat of competition.

Dan,
I don't really know you but I know Bruce & Dorothy. I do know that you are a big nut! Congratulations! Good luck in future years.

Unheralded Indians Finish Third in Conference

On the football field, the opposition doesn't surprise a Schumerth-coached football team. The good coach is only surprised by testimonial dinners given in his honor. After 21 years at the helm of OHS football fortunes, Schumerth was feted in November for his accomplishments as gentleman, teacher and coach by over 200 former players and parents of players.

The only recommendation given the Indian football team at the first practice session in August was that 101 players reported. It was the largest turnout in the school's history but contained only two starters from last year's second-place FRVC squad. By the end of the season accolades were pouring in from all directions.

Led by Tony Ceelen, who was named to both units of the All-Conference squad, five starters were chosen by sports writers to round out the ideal team. Myles Strasser and Mike Zuehlke were named on the offensive unit; Hal Malnory and Pat Schrage on the defensive unit.

Strasser and Zuehlke were the hottest running combination seen in this part of the country since the Republican Party ran McKinley and Roosevelt together. Between them they accounted for 1,203 yards rushing and 39 yards passing. Strasser won conference scoring honors, while Zuehlke astounded spectators by averaging 8.4 yards each time he carried the ball.

If the Indians suddenly seemed to opponents and spectators as a power that just was not supposed to exist, then just as suddenly they were a powder-puff. In a lack-luster daylight performance the squad dropped a 0—20 decision to Appleton and with it dropped from title contention. Rain, a slippery football, a few injuries added up to a scoreless tie with an avenging Green Bay West team.

Here, perhaps, is the explanation behind Coach Schumerth's testimonial dinner this year. It was a tribute to what he teaches: how to win and how to learn from losing. As a result the Indians finished out the season with two victories and stood third in the Conference Standings with a 6 win, 1 loss, 1 tie record.

Indian Bid for WIAA Championship Falls Short

For cliff-hanging suspense nothing topped the 1963 Indian Baseball Team. Take Hal Malnory's two dramatic home runs against Waupaca in the Sectional playoff contest. One blast in the bottom of the seventh tied the contest; a second shot in the bottom of the eleventh won the game.

Enthusiasts of the pitching game were rewarded by Dave Reamer. Reamer left-handed the Indians the District Title with his sensational no-hit performance against Stockbridge.

But, the Indians played the "we'll win with our last ups" routine once too often against Madison Central in the semi finals of the State Tournament. Having spotted the capital city team a three-run lead in the first, the Indians narrowed the lead to 3—2 in the sixth, only to be overwhelmed by a four run uprising in the seventh.

For a team that finished in second place in the conference standings, winning third place honors in the WIAA State Tournament was a real accomplishment.

Wood, Schrage, Malnory, Gaither and Ambrose—names that bring back the good memories of 1963—are all on this year's playing roster. Granted Coach Quandt has some prospecting and developing to do, the team will be an interesting and exciting club to watch again this year.

Cheerleaders Introduce New Uniforms, Cheers

Gone were the bulky sweaters, the two-tone tennis shoes and the heavy wool skirts. Varsity Cheerleaders drastically departed from the traditional uniforms to go modern. Crisp, light-weight white blouses with OHS insignias, blue pleated culottes and clean tennis shoes presented a fresh, new look at basketball games and pep rallies. Sweaters and slacks continued to be worn at football games.

Cheers were updated through the imagination of the girls and their adviser, Mrs. Faust. Although straighter stick motions lent a more modern air, jumps were still the cheerleaders' speciality.

WTH EVERY MUSCLE taut and a look of anguished determination, Mike Zuehlke strained to clear the bar in high jumping.

Individual Standouts Highlight Track, Cross Country Squads

The school's detention room, known to the initiated as the Sin Bin, held more spectator interest last year than track meets. Such goings-on do not bring a smile to the off-season smiling face of Coach Flood. The move to the new track facilities behind the school, if accomplished, might improve attendance. Moving the track field can't alter the Track Team's prospects.

On the basis of individual performances, the Indians will probably give a good account of themselves in the weight events, pole vault, high jump and broad jump. Total balance necessary to produce team victories in conference track meets just doesn't exist on paper.

It is just possible, that having bottomed every dual and triangular meet last year, the squad will have tasted enough of the sour grapes of defeat and make up its collective mind to win in 1964. Such possibilities keep the faithful few attending track meets. Such possibilities revitalize Coach Flood every Spring.

For the first time in the school's history, Oshkosh has a Cross Country Track Team. The start wasn't a cinder-burner, just a start. But, with junior letter winner Sam Muinde returning along with three other experienced juniors, the prospects for next fall look a little brighter.

In Cross Country Meets, as in Golf Matches, the winner is determined by the lowest number of total points scored.

STARTING OUT SLOWLY and picking up momentum as he went, Chris Priebe headed toward the bar and his adventure with unaided flight and free falling objects.

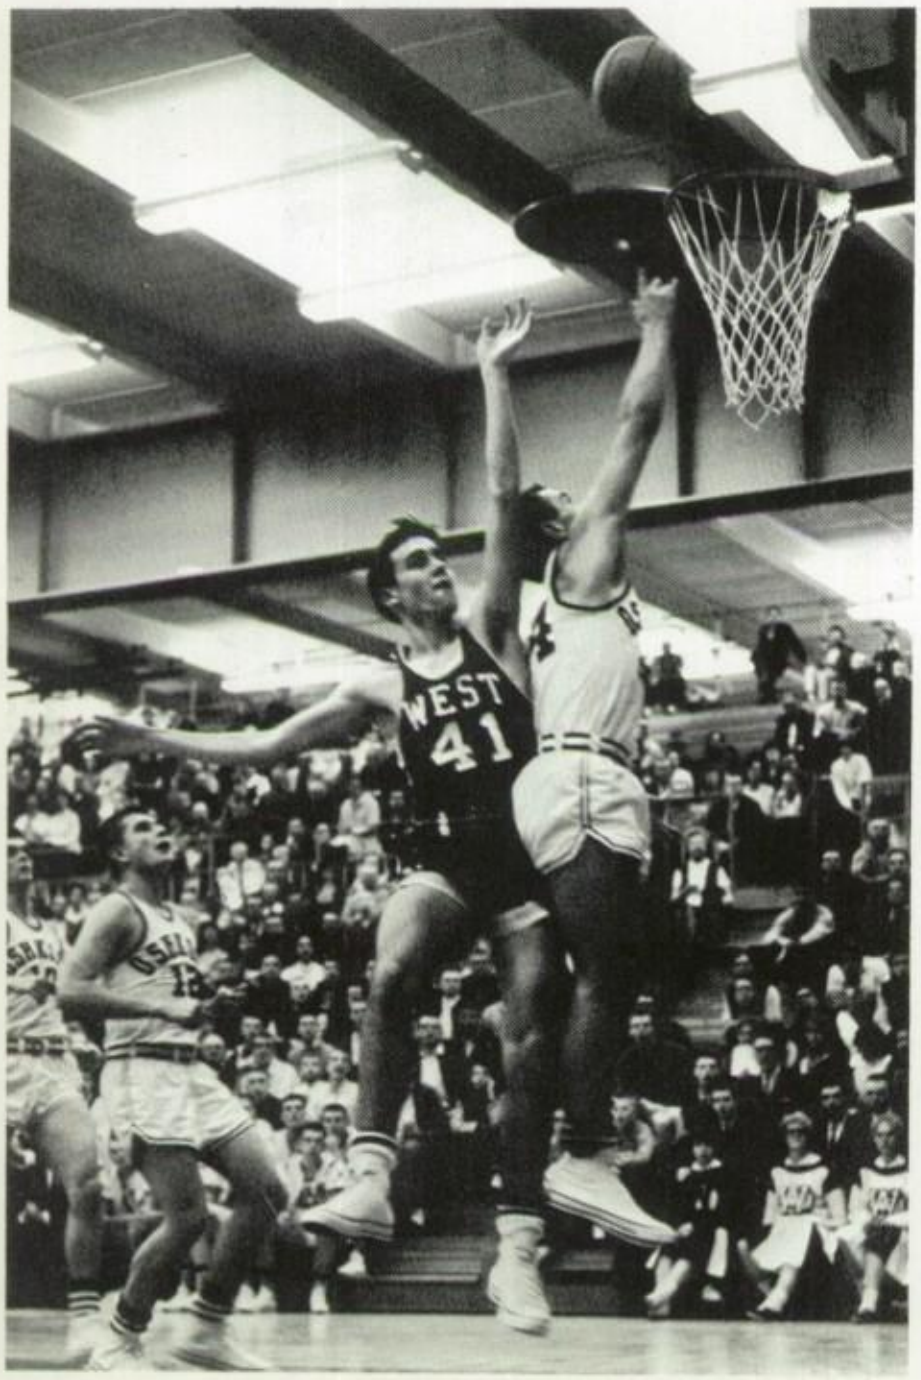
Erickson Chosen FRVC Coach of the Year

Ironic best summarizes the basketball season. The Indians defeated the two teams above them in the FRVC. Mr. Erickson coached the team to equal its best conference record during his Oshkosh career. Yet, the Indians finished third in the final standings.

Players developed personal specialities, although team work was obvious. Height and weight enabled Bob Wegener to sweep offensive and defensive rebounds. Backcourt stealing and easy layups were Bruce Erickson's speciality. Greg Wood delighted in "swan-dive" baskets, guaranteeing a basket or a free throw. Powerful Myles Strasser hit from the key, while Mike Malone sank clincher free throws.

The gratitude of the fans and the character of Coach Erickson were revealed on the dressing room blackboard following the Manitowoc triumph. It read: "No practice Monday. Thanks for a great effort."

THE PRESS WAS ON. Mike Malone and Bruce Erickson harassed the opposing team's guards. Under the pressure the opposition usually panicked and threw the ball away without getting off a shot.



THE SMALLEST INDIAN could go way up when necessary. Pressure by the guards produced this fast break opportunity. Bruce Erickson took it in for the lay-up while Mike Malone trailed the play.

Oshkosh	49	Menasha	67

MEMBERS OF THE 1963-64 Varsity Basketball Squad, bottom row: Coach Erickson, M. Zuehlke, M. Strasser, R. Wegener, J. Harper, Greg Wood, M. Malone. ROW TWO: B. Erickson, G. Scheuermann, R. Fuhs, J. Buehner, T. Ambrose, R. Magnusen, W. Loots, Manager J. Otto.

OSHKOSH CONTROLLED THE CENTER JUMP. The long arm of Bob, "Huey," Wegener consistently outreached the opposition. Greg Wood started his move. In the background a cheerleader roused the crowd with the chant, "Go, go, go." Another home game was under way.

SURROUNDED BY APPLETON PLAYERS, Strasser balanced ballet fashion and hoped that one of his teammates could successfully float a high pass into a pivot.

State Championship Eyed by Perennially Strong Tennis Team

Perennially first or second in conference standings and a perennial power in the State Tournament, the 1964 Tennis Team could be number one at both levels of competition. It will take just a little more, not much, than State Singles Champion Dan Bleckinger to make the possibility a reality.

Since taking over the coaching job in 1942, Mr. Hansen has had more good years than bad. The last seven years have been the best. Never in that time have the Indians finished below second in the conference standings. And, despite the fact that a 28 game team winning streak was snapped in 1963, the squad has enough balance in the singles and doubles to carry its fresh team winning streak on to first place in the conference and state tournament.

1963 Team Record

Oshkosh	4	Beaver Dam	3
Oshkosh	7	Fond du Lac	0
Oshkosh	5	Sheboygan North	2
Oshkosh	6	Sheboygan South	1
Oshkosh	2	Appleton	5
Oshkosh	4	Sheboygan South	3
Oshkosh	2	Sheboygan North	5
Oshkosh	6	Fond du Lac	1
Oshkosh	0	Neenah	7

AS THE INDIANS' number one player and as the 1963 State Singles Champion, Dan Bleckinger ran up a string of victories by relying on his speed and accuracy.

PLAYING FOR THE dip in the living room floor, much as he would play for the dip on a putting green, Craig Friedrich polishes his short game during the off-season to be ready for spring team play.

Potential Exhibited by Linksmen; Spring Test Eagerly Anticipated

Perhaps football and basketball games at OHS were not played before a capacity crowd, but at least there were as many spectators in attendance as athletes competing. The same cannot be said for golf matches. The five members of the golf squad and Mr. Erickson, their coach, were usually the only interested persons on the golf course. Had anyone followed the team around the 18 holes of the Lakeshore Municipal Golf Course, he probably would not have understood the game of the silently concentrating players.

The Indian link team was a young squad comprised primarily of sophomores and juniors. In the case of the golf team, youth was synonymous for inexperience. Every member of the team had shot under 75 and had scored at least two eagles. Despite singularly fine exhibitions, the team seemed doomed to second and third place standings, with victories over Neenah and Ripon only. In the conference meet the Oshkosh linksmen finished in sixth place with Manitowoc taking most of the honors. The team will come of age this year as five lettermen return and pose a real threat to other Valley teams.

Don-
It's been nice knowing you the past few years.
Wasn't it a lot of fun at the pot lucks, picnics
and roller skating
I think I will always remember this year, the prom, picnic and everything was just great
Hope to see again next year at the college. Lots of luck in the future

CLASSES

What is our school? What is it for? Is it books and fun, or something more?

Oshkosh High School was work—minimum essentials, physical fitness tests, oral book reports, shelving, frog dissection, committee meetings and square roots. Complicated days brought enough problems to occupy our thoughts; and before we recovered from the shock of Monday, Friday was upon us.

Oshkosh High School was fun—songs, dances, telephones, driving, class parties, hand-holding, dreams, touchdowns and practical jokes. Between books and in spite of homework, we found time to enjoy the period of our lives that is reputed to be the best.

Oshkosh High School was people—friends, teachers, classmates, acquaintances, enemies and a crowd. We were divided according to class, but we were united in the work of education and the fun of growing up.

Big D (stands for Don),
We're soon to be former seniors as I write this. You are another one of the kids who have made OHS what it was to
me. Good luck,

Greg

Sophomores View Minimum Essentials With Mixed Emotions

"THE RAVONS," a small combo comprised of junior and senior high school boys, provided music for dancing and listening at the Sophomore Party. Not the biggest social event of the school year but the first, the party attracts nearly as many juniors and seniors as sophomores.

Don—
We sure had a sweet time in Basic's English last year. I'll always remember it.
Best of luck in the future!
Your friend
Lance

Don,

Our study hall days are over for a while, or should I say for good. It sure has been fun second semester. This study hall would have been so dull without you. I want to get serious for once when I wish you all the happiness in the world. I hope you find joy in whatever you do. I'm sure you will be the swell guy you are.

Sharon Wiseman

Don:
Why are you such a brown in English? Mrs. Moore really favored you.
Best of luck in any career you may decide upon—

Class, Faculty Honor These Twelve Senior Stars

Because their loyalty was never questioned, because their character was always respected, because their personalities made them sought after as companions, because they accepted the responsibilities of leadership and met the challenge of scholarship, these are the Senior Stars of 1964. They represent a cross section of the quality of our high school. In each one, all students can feel pride, for a star is only as bright as its reflection on its surroundings.

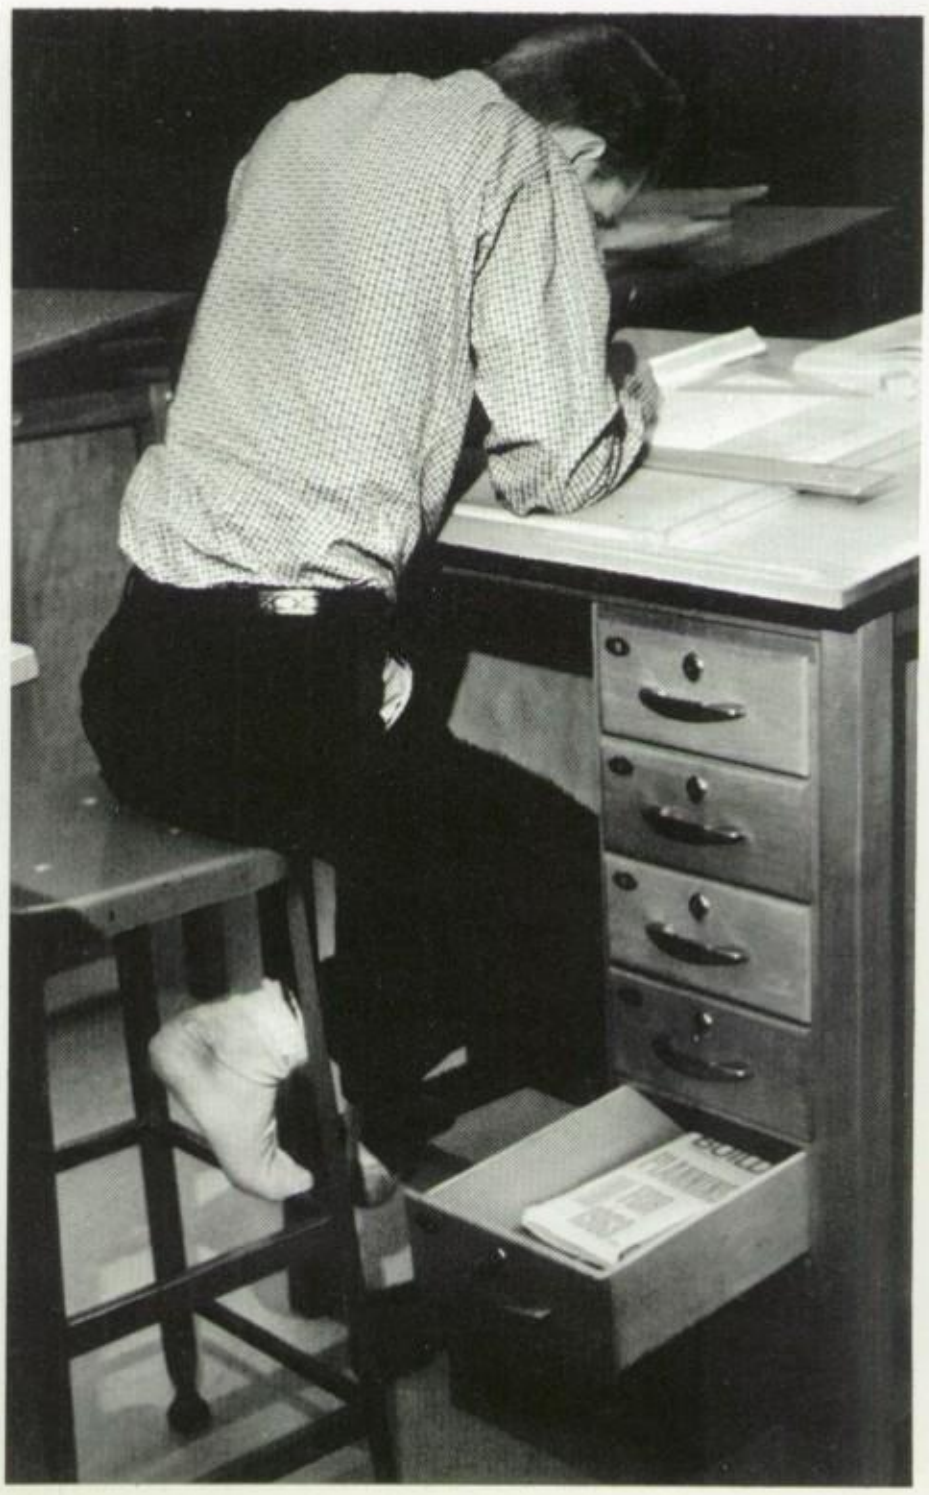
Experimenting, Waiting, Hoping, Relaxing, Partying

SUMMER HOUSE CLEANING of all rooms meant clearing them of desks, bookcases and chairs. These desks, overturned to conserve space, occupied most of the hall and blocked passage worse than rushing students.

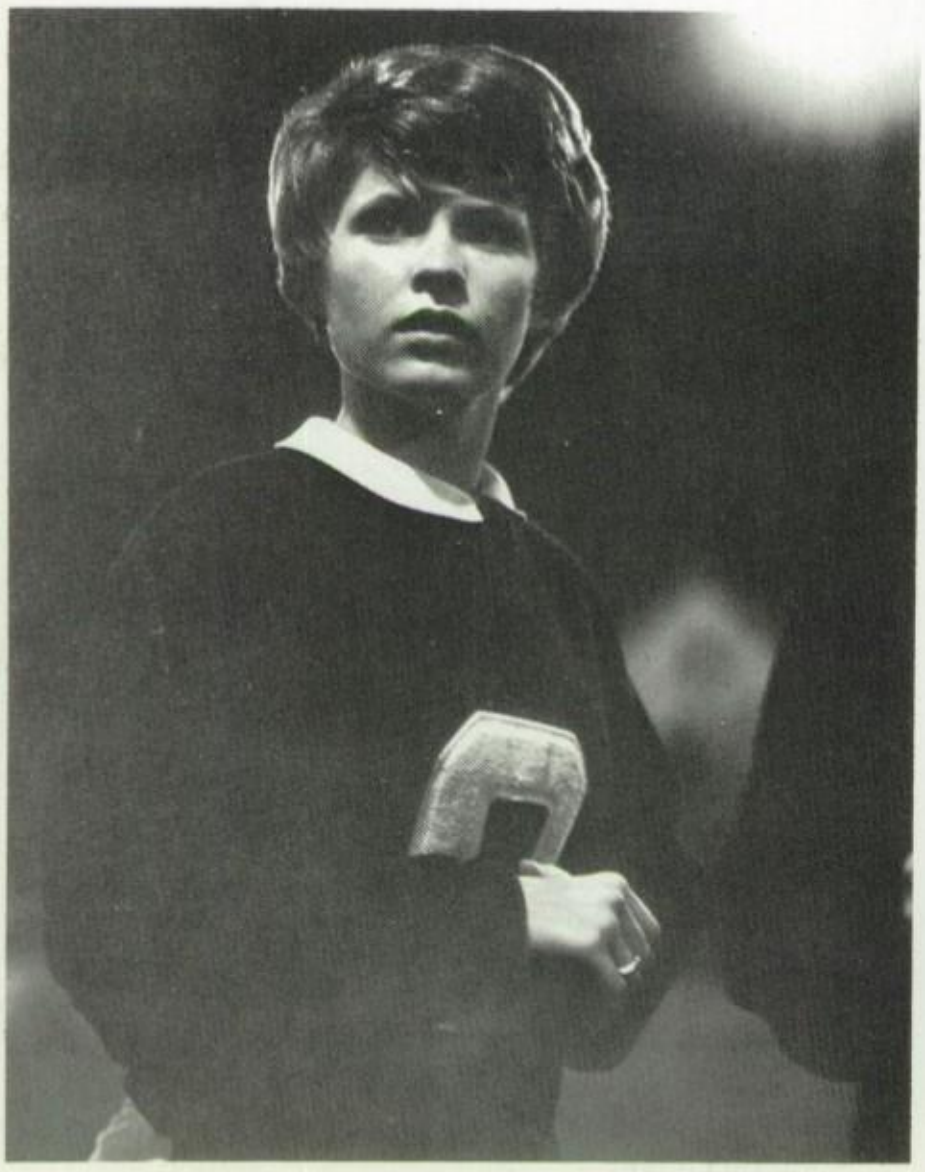
As we look back, we will remember the recent events. We see ourselves waltzing at the Prom, exchanging Notebook signatures and accepting our diplomas. During these climaxing events, we will remember the sidelights, traditions and private jokes that made the major activities unforgettable.

Girls wobbling on Dress-up Day, the cafeteria's sandwiches, misunderstood homerooms, and the daily announcements are little things, suggestive to the memory. Comical incidents and routine happenings, pertinent at the time and important to the individual, will spark flashbacks and recall bigger moments.

APPARENTLY FEELING RIGHT at home in the architectural drawing class, Charles Schneider slipped off his shoes. The lower half of his body was relaxed, although the upper half was actively working on a drawing project.



WITH APPREHENSIVE EYES and an anxious frown on her face, Vicki Matsche waited for the referee's final decision.



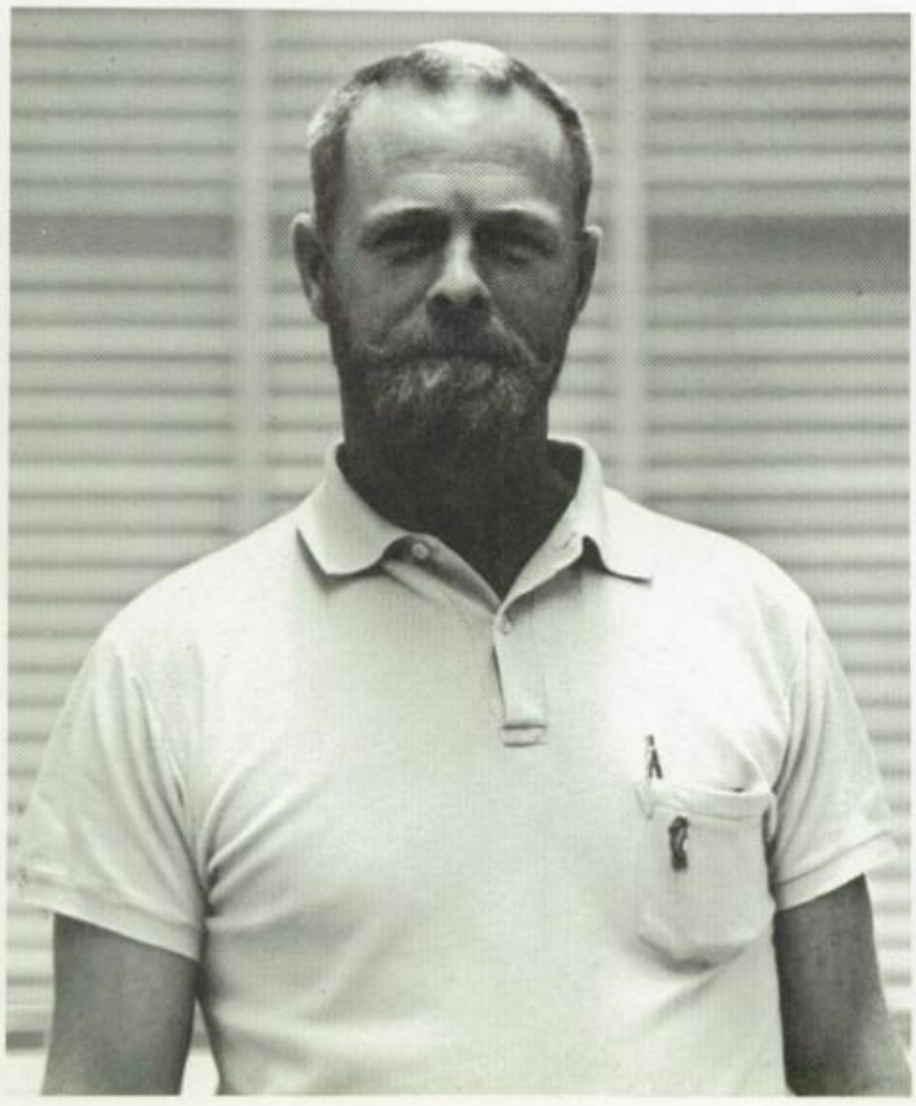
Don,

It was fun in English class, wasn't it? I hope your Summer is fun and best of luck in your future years.

Pam Schram

PRIOR TO A BANQUET of spicy foods, participants in the Spanish Fiesta presented four skits entirely in Spanish. The cast of this second year production included Peter Pinkerton, John Paul, Jean Kaufman and Jim Gunz.

BEHIND THIS BUSHY growth lurked a smile of satisfaction. Some teachers spend the summer in stuffy university classrooms, others go traveling, but Mr. Spees obviously spent his cultivating and preening this fine growth.



TAPE, WRAPPING PAPERS, scissors, ribbon and patience were the tools necessary to the FBLA members, Janet Pasono, Kathy Befus and Bettye Radig, as they wrapped presents for children at the state hospital.

Planning, Anticipating, Accomplishing, Reflecting

CONVULSED WITH LAUGHTER at their own cheering foolishness, Miss Kleveno, Mr. Spatz and Miss Kovars were unable to spell out the "Oshkosh" cheer begun by Miss Smith and Mr. Pennewell.

IN AN EFFORT to add color and culture to the corridors of OHS, Barb Bradshaw, Mr. Patterson and Sue Miller hung paintings loaned to the school by various foundations.

FEATURED AS THE "BUBBLING WOODWINDS" in "Opus 9" were Nancy Ritchie, Pat Shrock and Lynelle Linton. The appropriate background of bubbles was provided by a machine in the orchestra pit.

WHITE DINNER JACKETS, cocktail dresses, bow ties and high heels created an atmosphere appropriate for a gala evening of semi-classical and popular music—"Music for Moderns."

FORMING A CIRCLE around mascot "Kie Ko," varsity cheerleaders Lynn Bruins, Barbara Konrad, Vicki Matsche, Nancy McCray, Joy Konrad and Donna Cross clapped out a popular pre-game cheer and waited for the chiefs to "come marching in."

Editors Get First and Last Chance to Say "Hello"

What was Notebook? Notebook was layout, pix and copy.

Layout was the big black dummy book. But it was more than this book or the pencils, rulers and paper that went into its making. Layout was Bettye, Bonnie, Carla, and Richard, their ideas and accuracy. Filling the layout spaces was photography, edited by and occupying TR. The Notebook was pix.

Research was three cardboard boxes, a brown book and Judy. Operating as a police force, the Notebook "investigators, "Barb, Gail, Janet P., Sally, Brian, Judy Q., and Sue Ann, tracked down and spelled out every student in the school.

Copy was the brown-striped book. But copy was more than words and grammar. It was Anita, Dennis, Jane, Jean, Linda, Mike, Sally and Tom B., their cutlines, a 137 words and "roughs." Given questionnaires, deadlines and "M & M's," these kids summed up the entire year in words. Then they went back checking spelling and correcting errors.

Headlines were Craig and Kathie. A basic idea, 96 active verbs and another word for "club" were rewarded with a nod and a square of fudge. Working on headlines at a set rate, the two summarized an activity in about forty letters.

Typing was "ratta tat, click, click and thump." The electric, the manual and the old "clunker" each its own characteristic sound as Carol, Barb, Karen and Sandy tapped the keys to produce final copy.

Advertising was a telephone call and a big brown folder. Kate, Helaine, Janet J., Jim, Judy Q., Karen, Mary and Pat mapped and covered the whole city soliciting ads to support the book.

What did Notebook mean to us? Very little at first, then we went to Madison. The summer journalism clinic made us realize our positions and gave us many new ideas. For two weeks we tramped the hills to class at 7 a.m. and strolled along the lake paths back to Elm Drive B. But clinic was not all classes and reading "Allnutt." A Lake Mendota boat trip, a chaperoned venture to the Rathskeller and escapes off campus added memories to Madison. There we found a goal, realizing what "All-American" meant.

All year Notebook has been the center of our thoughts and our time, often coming before grades, sleep and vacation. But even 3-R correcting and cutline writing were fun when done with a willing group.

A simple "thank you" can never be enough. There are so many to thank—our teachers who helped us, our friends who tolerated us, and our parents who understood us. Thank you MISS DANGERS and MISS KOVARS for your assistance and typing. Thank you MR. THOMPSON for contributing so much time as official school photographer. Thank you MR. MALANEY for making us want to do our best.

Kurt Schmidt

Hi ya Don!
You sure have had a lot of the bounce in the senior class, and it was an honor to know you.
you always made things lively.
Lots of luck in the future
Jim Wills

Don,
Bruce says that you want to go golfing
maybe we can get together this summer
To a real nice guy
the best of Luck.
Have fun.
Bob Langley

Hi Don
It's been nice knowing you the past three years. Hope to see you this summer, sometime. Good luck in the future.

Eugene Walton

Don,
It was amazing that we didn't blow up the school last year in chemistry and drive Mr. Dalton crazy this year in math. Good luck always

Kate Fox

Don,
I wish that you would try and remember my name. Well good luck kid.

Barbara Schneider

Dear Don,
I'm a kid I skated with at the roller rink. Good luck in whatever you do.

Bonnie Hamilton

Don,
You really gave our gym squad that extra power this year, Keep up the good work and best of luck in the future years!

Jim Luedtke

Don,
It's really been a blast in math IV and I hope you have this year. Watch the girls.

Greg Krueger

Best of luck always Donnie, Don't ever forget all those wild and weird memories. Have a swingin' summer. Bert Witzel Donnie or should I call you big Don or better yet "Otter"!

This year has brought so many fond memories, I know you'll never forget them! Starting from when we first all get to know each other in 10th grade we've had a ball! You've been the Santa Claus of the group! How will we ever forget all the potlucks where we played "Spin the Bottle"! Then there were those ~~potlucks~~ parties which got to be really "big". Donnie you and your "Bonnie Belmer" I shall never forget! The prom was marvelous & the day afterwards. I'll never forget your little Kowai & I know I'll see you this summer & next year in college. Have a swinging summer & let's make college really great.

Your (Bonnie Belmer)
